HUNT LOST PLANE AND FLYERS IN ARCTIC CIRCLE

Four Are Missing In Arctic Storm; Searchers Are Out

Terrific Blizzard Is Raging And Adds To Peril Of Flyers

MEN WERE MAKING TRIP OF MERCY

Fear Plane Has Crashed To Earth Somewhere Within Arctic Circle

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

SEWARD, Alaska, April 8.—Mushers and dog teams raced over the bleak wastes between Nome and Candle today in search of four men whose plane is feared to have crashed somewhere inside the Arctic Circle.

Pilot R. H. Merrill, his mechanician, Alonzo Cope, and two passengers, Hillery Robinson and Edgar Broadway, hopped off for Candle when Merrill's "mercy flight" to save Davis Sepillu, critically ill on St. Lawrence Island, was interrupted at Nome by death of the wealthy Eskimo. Merrill planned to return to Nome Tuesday night, but according to last advices received here had not even arrived at Candle.

Worry over the fate of the four flyers was increased by a terrific blizzard raging over the Arctic tundra. The same storm, according to reports, is delaying the Wilkins expedition at Point Barrow.

Two Are Killed, Scores Injured, In Rail Wrecks

Two Wrecks In Kansas Early Today; Train Jumps Track In Making Detour

(International News Service)

PARSONS, Kan., April 8.—The engineer and fireman of the Sooner, a Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway train, were killed today when the train jumped the track near St. Paul, Kansas, while making a detour for another wreck. Several others were injured.

The other wreck occurred when another M. K. T. train, the southbound Texas flyer, struck a low place where a culvert had been washed out two miles south of Erie, Kansas. Twenty persons were hurt, some possibly dangerously.

The locomotive and two coaches of the Texas Flyer passed the culvert safely, but six other coaches went into a ditch.

After the Texas Flyer had gone into the ditch, a brakeman, whose name was not learned, swung across the creek on the hanging rails and flagged another train that was following, saving it from crashing into the wreck.

Secure Nearly 1200 Members For Y.M.C.A. In Two Day Drive

Workers More Than Double Quota Set In Membership Campaign

Alec Samuel's Team Is Winner, Securing Total Of 238

Quota of 500 was more than doubled in the two-day Y. M. C. A. membership drive when 1,156 new members were reported Thursday night at the dinner in the banquet hall of the Y. as the final report was given. This establishes a new record, according to R. L. Meermans, general secretary of the association.

Alec Samuel's team led the lot, with a total of 238 new members, of which Samuels himself secured 89. The boys' team, under the leadership of John Leonard, was only nine behind the winning team, with a total of 229, the team having secured five more than Samuels' team during the second day of the drive.

Directors' Division Routed

The young men's and boys' division completely outclassed the director's division in the drive, with a total of 746, compared with their elders' 392. Mr. Meermans said that it was owing to the wonderful work of these young men and boys that made the drive such a success. In the individual contest between Sherwood Johns of the boys' team, who accepted the challenge of Alec Samuels to obtain a total of 50 members by individual effort, neither one has to forfeit a banquet, as both went over the 50 mark. Young Johns made a total of 51, while Samuels tallied all of 89. The boy did especially well, as he was limited to the time outside of school hours, and as the time grew shorter the prospects became fewer.

Others of the boys were up and doing. Billy Marlin tallied 44, Jack Llewellyn had 40, Kennie Myers secured 31 and Roger Meermans added up 18. The kids sure did hustle, for their two teams secured 375 members, or nearly one-third of the total amount. Their two teams far surpassed that of any other two in the drive. When John Leonard was asked how they did it he said: "Just look at those 40 boys". And there they were, 40 bundles of enthusiasm and energy.

Just Go Out and Do It

When Alec Samuels, captain of the winning team, was asked how he had done it, he replied, "When you want to do a thing, just go out and do it. That is the way we did it."

When Walter Kirker, chairman of the young men's and boys' division, was interviewed he said that he had been chosen to the position because he captained the winning team last year. He said he liked George Lyon, the chairman of the directors' division, "awfully well", but that he just had to beat him.

R. L. Meermans said that credit for the record made, in his opinion has to be given to the spirit of the young men and boys who are the active members of the Y., which the directors used to be. These boys who showed "pep" in basketball, wrestling and in the pool, also showed "pep" in the drive for new

Immunization For Diphtheria Is Discussed

Youngstown And Local Doctors Tell Of Results Of Treatment

DIPHTHERIA IS BEING PREVENTED

Parents Of Pupils In New Castle Schools To Face Question

Elimination of cases of diphtheria among school children of New Castle was vividly shown as possible at a mass meeting of parents and teachers held in the Senior High School auditorium Thursday afternoon. Dr. James F. Elder of Youngstown, was the principal speaker.

Doctors Take Part

The meeting was presided over by Dr. C. C. Green, superintendent of the New Castle schools. Others who took part in the program besides Dr. Elder were Dr. P. A. Shoaff, president of the Lawrence County Medical Society, Dr. H. C. Harper, State Medical Director for Lawrence County, Dr. Mildred Rogers and Dr. R. G. Campbell, medical inspector and physician for the public schools.

Dr. Elder who is Health Commissioner of Mahoning County, Ohio, showed how in the city of Youngstown with a school population of about 35,000, diphtheria had been practically eliminated from among school children. This has been done by the Schick method of testing and by immunization by toxin anti-toxin.

Gives Statistics

Statistics were given by Dr. Elder that showed how in 1923 there were 93 cases of diphtheria in Youngstown with 69 deaths, while during this last year there were 29 cases of this disease with 6 deaths and this wonderful improvement was due entirely to the immunization of the majority of the school children with the toxin anti-toxin treatment. Of these 29 cases of the disease, only 5 cases were of school children and all of these except one had neither had the Schick test or been immunized. The one case was of a girl about 16 years of age who had only 2 doses of the treatment although she showed a very positive result in the test.

Senior Players Present "Charm" In Able Manner

Annual Class Play Is Up To High Standard Of School Plays

SOME NEW TALENT SCORES SUCCESS

Play To Be Repeated This Evening—Some Changes In Cast

Lives there a man with soul so dead who never to himself hath said Gee I wish that I had charm? Well folks the secret's out and for the very trifling sum of $8.64 you can attain that life long desire to enchant the universe with an abundance of personality, or what have you?

Joe Pond the "hick-hero" of the John Kirpatrick comedy drama "Charm" learned after careful study of a voluminous book that to cultivate that bewitching, captivating and alluring quality you must first develop your intellect toward a given point. Having attained that elusive and sauve manner you just can't go wrong and you are bound to hold a supernatural influence over everyone with whom you come in contact. Charm is just as necessary to the make-up as black squares to a cross-word puzzle.

Present Annual Play.

The Senior class of New Castle High school presented their annual play last evening in the school auditorium and it was "Charm."

It was all "Charm" in fact. Furthermore it was charming and you couldn't help being charmed by the near professional manner in which the various characters portrayed their parts. The Senior play this year takes its place among the best that has ever been produced in the school. A well filled house greeted the thespians in their efforts to please and one could not help hearing all the nice things that was said by the patrons as they filed out of the building at the finis.

The play written in three acts is developed around a small country town where the sidewalks are still muddy and where excitement passed when the Civil war ended. There is of course the country boy with a dream of love, the village belle and the lights of Broadway as her goal in life, the pure sophisticated old mother and the ever-providing father, etc., even to the habitual gossip or rapid talker, common to every community. There are few dull moments for the audience and the three acts are unfolded and everything turns out for the best and they live happy ever after and all that sort of thing.

Cotton In Three Roles.

You may recall Norman Cotton in other roles and in other plays of recent date. In "Fifi" "The Lucky Break" and the "Showoff," but if you miss his character work in "Charm" you are going to feel disappointed.

Young Cotton really outrivals himself in his portrayal of the soda dispenser or country-shiek in the Senior play. The part calls for a

Youngsters Break Out Of Local Detention Home; But Are Quickly Captured

Escape From Home Here By Knocking Hole Through Wall

With the bold abandon of hardened criminals of many years experience, three small boys, Frank Matey, aged 12; George Balinsky, aged 13, and Leo Zrebec, aged 12, arrested Wednesday by Officers Horner, Lynch and Jack Young for their part in several South Side robberies, about 7 o'clock last night, knocked a hole through the side of the Detention Home on Court street, slid down a telephone pole, hiked to New Castle Junction and made a perilous journey on the rear car of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Flyer to Pittsburgh, where they were apprehended.

Returned To City

They were returned to the city early this morning by Juvenile Court Officer Jack Dunlap, Constable Mike Fazzone and Officer Robert Letera of the city police force, and held in the city jail until taken to court this afternoon for the disposal of their case.

It was about 6:15 p. m. Thursday night, when they were given their evening meal by Officer Dunlap, who has charge of the Detention Home. They were told at the time to be ready for a hearing at 7 o'clock at the office of Alderman J. Lee Cooper.

Probably ten minutes to 7 o'clock Officer Dunlap was advised by a neighbor that some boys had escaped from the second floor of the home. They had a start of about five minutes.

Make Escape

It was found that the boys had taken a rung from a chair and used it in making the hole through the wall. They had pulled off the plaster and lath with it, using a blanket and other bed clothing to deaden the sound. They had followed the same method in knocking off the weather boarding on the outside of the building, using both the piece of a chair and their feet in knocking off the boards. From the hole on the second floor they got out on a porch roof and used a telephone pole in getting to the ground.

Running down Pearson street, to Pollock avenue, then along Long avenue and out Pennsylvania avenue, they reached Clifton Flats, and

There's a restless urge in the meadow sod and the trees seem ill at ease, there's a something that's urging the plants to work, borne in on the morning breeze. There's a whispering hum in the maple tops, one almost can hear them sing, and they seem to be saying the livelong day, wake up there neighbor, it's Spring. And the roots and buds and the shrubbery are starting their agents to work, no time for the slacker or idler, no room for the fellows who shirk. For they've slept and snoozed and idled long, till they've idled the winter away, but there's work ahead as they all well know, it's 51 today.

ELLWOOD CITY LEGION MEN GUESTS HERE THURSDAY

joyed. The menu included chicken salad, mashed potatoes with gravy, a dessert termed the "McKibben Special", pickles, bread and butter and coffee.

It was shortly after 8 o'clock when the Ellwood City legionnaires arrived and were seated at the banquet tables. After singing America, Rev. J. R. Rutledge, pastor of Providence Baptist church at North Sewickley and a member of the Ellwood City post, pronounced the blessing.

The throng then engaged in enjoying the feed provided for the occasion, taking time occasionally under the leadership of Ivor Davis to engage in pep singing.

Davis Toastmaster.

Assuming the duties of toastmaster, Ivor Davis performed his duties in a pleasing and efficient manner, keeping the crowd enthused by his remarks and timely introductions of the various speakers.

The program of the evening was opened with a humorous reading by Harry Turner of the Ellwood City post, which met with an enthusiastic reception.

E. E. Stephenson, member of the Butler post and chef de guerre of the Butler Butler County Voiture of the Forty and Eight, was the first speaker called upon and remarked on the spirit manifested, which he said was the same spirit being manifested throughout the country by the legion. He said that one reason he liked the legion was the amount of good that was being done for the widows and orphans for service men and said that alone was worth more than the dues collected each year, while there wsa much good to be received from the acquaintanceship and fellowship made possible in the organization. He concluded by extending an invitation to the New Castle and Ellwood City legionnaires to attend the meetings of the Butler post.

Pat Dempsey Speaks.

Pat J. Dempsey, district commander in the 26th congressional district, expressed a welcome to the visiting Ellwood City men and spoke of the benefits that had accrued to both New Castle and Ellwood City posts by the friendly membership competition. The 26th district, he remarked, was one of six in the state that had gone over the top in the yearly membership efforts of the legion and he expressed the hope that not only the New Castle and Ellwood City posts but the posts of the entire district would send a large delegation to the state convention of the legion to be held in York, Pa. The 26th district, he stated, stood eighth in membership among the 36 districts of the state. He then spoke of Legion Day sponsored by the local post for June 22 at Conneaut Lake and also offered the Ellwood City post a part in the local legion publication.

Ellwood Commander Speaks.

Howard Jones, commander of Randolph post, was then called upon and stated he was glad to be present, believing that the Ellwood City post had earned the victory and feed and that the handicap placed in its favor and against the Perry S. Gaston post, had been none too large.

He then discussed the problem of every post, that of getting members to renew their membership from year to year and urged that all members feel it an obligation to renew their membership from year to year without the necessity of making a canvass of those who are affiliated with a post.

He then called for three cheers for the local post, which were given with a will under the leadership of Harry Turner.

Foley Speaks.

Thomas Foley, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at Ellwood City, chef de guerre of the Lawrence County Voiture of the Forty and Eight and a member of the Ellwood City post, was then called on and expressed his appreciation of being present at the event, told how Ellwood City post did good work in defeating New Castle, but could have done still better work if the members had made greater efforts and suggested that the New Castle, Ellwood City and Butler posts enter into a tri-city contest next year.

L. B. McAnaney of the local post was then called to the front, congratulated Ellwood City post on winning and expressed the hope that New Castle might enjoy a banquet next year at the expense of Ellwood City.

Attorney C. A Patterson, adjutant of Gaston post, was called on for remarks and kept the former service men in a happy frame of mind, while he discoursed on human nature and urged that the legion was one of the outstanding organization of the country, because it was looking forward into the future for the benefit of the ex-service man and the welfare of the nation. In concluding, he extended congratulations to Ellwood City legionnaires for winning.

Others who were called upon for remarks were Attorney W. Walter Braham, H. K. Beil, Harry M. Long, Bart Richards, Dr. F. H. Swanson. Attorney Braham, past commander of Gatson post, offered his congratulations to the winners, expressed a hope for the continued happy relations of the two posts and said that it had resulted in the members of the two posts becoming better acqainted and making a common cause of things that are beneficial to them and the legion.

Harry M. Long, present commander of Perry S. Gaston post, said that he believed that these contests were good things and that he hoped that Gaston post would some time be on the winning end of a contest. He then told of an entertainment that the post here is to sponsor in the near future and asked the cooperation of Ellwood City in putting it across.

Bart Richards, member of the general assembly from New Castle, when called up, spoke concerning the status of the soldiers' bonus in Pennslyvania and stated that if favorable action was desired, that the legion posts in the state must get busy. He then referred to the fact that some of the best and most active members of the state legislature were members of the legion and that it was probable that still more would be returned to another session of the legislature and urged that the legion see to it that the best man available be selected.

Dr. F. H. Swanson of Ellwood City spoke on the bonus bill and urged action by the local posts, and he also urged that Ellwood City post back up New Castle in its coming entertainment.

Pat J. Dempsey, district commander, was recalled and spoke earnestly for a large representation of the organizations at the state conevntion in York, while Commander Howard Jones of Randolph also made a few concluding remarks, suggesting action of both posts concerning the soldiers' bonus, also in the matter of assisting New Castle in the coming entertainment.

Pep singing led by Ivor Davis with Cliff Jones of Ellwood City at the piano was enjoyed for a short time and then the very successful event was brought to a close with benediction by Rev. J. R. Rutledge of North Sewickley.

The success of the evening's dinner was the result of the efforts of L. B. McAnaney, John McKibben, Ivor Davis, Ed Hoye, A. H. Robb, Pat J. DOCTORS GATHER AT ANNUAL BANQUET

burgh, and Dr. Hauser, of Youngstown.

Music was furnished by an orchestra.

The chief entertainer of the evening was presented as Dr. Pulsudski, Professor of Foolishness in Humorous College of Budapest.

He spoke on the subject of "Bone Surgery" and told of a very wonderful form of treatment discovered for treating diseases of the bones, the most obstinate disease of which was "bone-headedness." He offered to sell stock in the project although he could hardly explain the method. The method of treatment was not yet perfected. In fact the method impressed him as so wonderful that he had not yet started on the project nevertheless he would be glad to sell any stock to those that desired.

The banquet was one of the most enjoyable as yet held by the Lawrence County society.

Dr. P. A. Shoaff, president of the Society acted as toastmaster. The program for the evening was arranged by the program committee consisting of Dr. E. U. Snyder, Dr. J. B. Foster, Dr. H. E. Zerner, and Dr. E. Caplan.

Discussion of Prof. Pulsudski's paper on "Bone Surgery" was led by Dr. Dickey, many of the doctors present entering into a deep discussion of the topic.

members. They got out and worked on their friends and acquaintances with such good will that today the membership roll has nearly 1,200 new names.

Appreciate Results

A. D. Mornes, president of the association, speaking in behalf of the board of directors, said they appreciated what the citizens of New Castle had done for the Y. He especially thanked the boys for the part they had in putting across this most successful drive for members, and that the Y. M. C. A. could not properly function without boys. He referred to the early struggles of the local Y. and what it was able to accomplish as it is today. Also, that it was never better officered and with one of the finest boards of directors in existence the citizens of New Castle could expect the organization to carry on and do a greater work than it has so well done in the past.

J. Clyde Gilfillan, general chairman of the drive, congratulated all on the record they had made and said for each one now to endeavor to make the new members feel at home, and after the summer is over to encourage their attendance at the Y. in the fall, and if they can have each new member pass a winter with them and enjoy the association with young Christian men there, they will be established members for the rest of their lives.

The dinner of the evening was served by the regular dining room force of the Y. M. C. A., but the waiters were six or seven lovely girls, mostly from the North Street Junior High school, who gladly volunteered their services. They were Eleanor Brudin, Gladys Biddle, Ruth Ingham, Lois Perdue, Nellie Brady, Louise Horner and Mary Hnat.

The "pep" singing was led by "Dick" Johns, but the crowd was most too enthusiastic and anxious to hear the results to keep well in time.

The results of the drive by teams, given in order of the greatest number of new members secured, follow:

THE GRAB BAG

April 8, 1927.

Twenty-five years ago. What was Chauncey M. Depew's age and what office did he hold at that time?

Today is the date of an annual spring observance. What is it?

Name a word meaning to penetrate and spread through.

"A fool and his money are soon parted." Who wrote that?

"Youth fades; love droops, the leaves of friendsh p fall;
A mother's secret hope outlives them all."
Who wrote these lines?

"Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith." Where does this passage appear in the Bible?

Today's Horoscope.

Women born on this date are fiery rather than affectionate, and should think a long while before marriage, as they generally crave only the affection which eludes them.

DINNER STORIES

There was once a fake Texas cowboy who roamed around New York, claiming to be attached to a Wild West show playing Coney Island.

One day while bragging to a crowd of open-mouthed yaps, he bumped into a real cowpuncher, who promptly stood him on his head. After picking himself up and running to a safe distance, he defiantly shook his fist and yelled back:

"You can assault me here in the crowded city, but wait until I get you out on the plains."

Who's Uncle Sam?

Watching the military parade in honor of Washington's birthday, Mrs. J.'s colored cook, enamored of such parades, began anticipating the next one, and asked:

"When dey gwine celebrate de birfday of dat ol' gentleman dey call Uncle Sam, an' how long is he been dead?"

BOYS MAKE ESCAPE FROM DETENTION HOME, BUT ARE RECAPTURED

Ride Rear End of Train

There they got on the rear end of a sleeper at the end of the 8:36 p. m. flyer of the P. & L. E. bound for Pittsburgh, due in that city about 9:45 p. m. In a space about eighteen inches deep and the width of the connecting doorway of railroad coaches, the boys at the risk of their lives and clinging only to the door posts and bumper journeyed clear to Pittsburgh without being observed by the train crew.

Seen By Detective

At Coraopolis, a detective of the railroad company observed some person on the rear coach and notified Pittsburgh. The train was met by officers and the boys apprehended. They gave ficticious names and a story that was not the truth.

The Pittsburgh authorities advised the local police authorities and Officer James Steiner, acting sergeant, got in touch with Parol Officer Dunlap, who was hunting the missing boys with Constable Fazzone, as sooon as possible. Descriptions of the boys were secured and on the receipt of this information, the boys told the truth. Officers Dunlap, Fazzone and Latera left about 11 o'clock last night and returned at five o'clock this morning with the boys.

This is the fourth occasion on which the Matey and Zrebec boys have been in on robbery charges and the second time for the Balinsky boy. They are out on parole.

If he has a kind look in his eyes, he probably isn't a professional reformer.

Libel Suit Pushes Slush Fund Board Into Background

Senate Slush Fund Committee Inactive Till Sapiro-Ford Suit Is Over

(International News Service)

DETROIT, April 8.—All activities of the Reed slush fund committee, under the new lease of life given it by Vice-President Dawes, will be postponed until after the Ford-Sapiro trial ends, Senator James A. Reed (D) of Mo., chairman, announced today.

Reed was highly pleased with Dawes' action in ruling the committee's power to investigate primary elections extended through the recess of congress.

"The matter, though, will have to rest until I get back to Washington," said Reed.

"Naturally, I think the ruling of Mr. Dawes is right. Every lawyer of standing, who has examined the question, held the committee had power to act during the recess."

The action of Dawes; in Reed's opinion, paves the way for the slush fund committee to obtain additional funds to carry on its investigation into the Pennsylvania senatorial election. The committee ordered ballots seized in four Pennsylvania counties but was handicapped by lack of funds.

Sen. Keyes (R) of N. H., chairman of the senate committee on contingent expenses, refused to authorize advances to the Reed committee last March until he was sure it had the power to act during the recess. The ruling of Dawes, Reed believed, will make it mandatory on Keyes to approve advances to the slush probers.

WHO IS WILL ROGERS?

Several Have Asked Us That Question

He is not a musical artist, but he is the greatest artist in the country in humorous, satirical speaking.

For five years he was the headline attraction daily at the Ziegfield Follies in New York. The demand for him all over the country was so great that Charlie Wagner, former manager for Galli-Curci and John McCormack induced him to leave New York and tour, strangely enough, the concert circuits.

Will Rogers makes records, talks occasionally by radio, writes daily for a hundred newspapers, contributes regularly to the biggest magazines, appears in the movies, is mayor of Beverly Hills, California.

But Will Rogers, the Inimitable, the Greatest One Man Show In the Country, Is Will Rogers On the "Lecture" Platform. However We Do Not Want You to Be Disappointed.

If you object to seeing an American who has Cherokee Indian blood in his veins, don't come to see WILL ROGERS.

If you object to seeing all formalities of the lecture platform give way to sage brush manners and gum chewers' ethics, don't come to see WILL ROGERS.

If you object to seeing the only man that ever went into the movies and came out with the same wife, then don't come to see WILL ROGERS. Rogers admits the fact himself.

If you object to hearing the English language occasionally slaughtered and strenuous slang once in a while resorted to, don't come to hear WILL ROGERS.

If you do not like to hear the "sanctity" of presidents, congressmen, senators, kings, and celebreties in general, exposed to an unmerciless bombardment of satire, then stay away from WILL ROGERS. (Back of the satire, lies the undeniable TRUTH which WILL ROGERS KNOWS AND CAN'T KEEP FROM TELLING. He merely dresses it in humor to make it easier swallowed).

We have told his "worst" qualities. We don't want you to be disappointed. Ask your friends who have heard him, about his "unusual" characteristics.

SECRET OF POPULARITY

MANY folks, particularly young people of reserved natures, worry because they are not "popular." They envy folks who always have admirers and friends. Many people of superior intellect look down on popularity. They feel it shows a too easy-going nature. They hold that if a person is to live sincerely and do his duty, he must often antagonize others, and make himself exceedingly unpopular.

Popularity comes in different ways. In the old days of free liquor a lot of people acquired popularity by the freedom with which they "set 'em up." This was the basis on which many politicians got their start. They were always ready to line up their friends in front of the brass rail and have several rounds 'on me." Many people win popularity by free spending, by living extravagantly and scattering cash in all directions.

On the other hand many people acquire popularity by devoting themselves to some public cause. College boys who carry on student activities, usually acquire popularity. They are entitled to it because they have to devote much time to maintaining the reputation of their institution.

Similarly in community life. Many people acquire popularity just by giving a great deal of effort to public activities, often more than superior persons who criticise them are willing to devote to such causes. Many people acquire popularity by the friendly interest they show everybody, by a winsome smile and cordial manner.

People who live self-absorbed lives are not popular and do not deserve to be. Any person can acquire a certain measure of popularity by manifesting interest and doing helpful things for others and performing service for the community.

LAW-ABIDING FISHERMEN FINANCE SPORT

THE annual reports of the State Fish and Game Commissions reveal a healthy condition one might wish were more common in government administration. Receipts for fishing licenses last year, for instance, were more than $275,000. The total is a measure of the state-wide popularity of the pastime. Fines for violating fishing laws, on the other hand, amounted only to $13,000, which was collected from 345 arrests.

While the average fine was apparently high enough for the desired punitive effect on the individual, the offenders were few comparatively and their aggregate contribution was small in proportion to the entire financial expenditure.

Disbursements for the year were under $250,000, the largest single item being for hatchery expenses. That the programme is financed so largely from the willingness of sportsmen to co-operate with the law, while the revenue from those who violate the law is negligible, is exceedingly satisfactory.

Complaints help to prove that there are many persons who are poor sports in various ways.

There is not much hope for the person who makes work the last expedient for getting along.

Nobody knows when the world will come to an end, if ever, but there are persons who are willing to take a chance on making themselves ridiculous by predicting.

A new continent is being formed in the Pacific ocean, scientists say. It's a little early to plan an excursion, however, as it will not be visible for 1,500 years.

CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

ALL IN NEW YORK

Ken Brown, cartoonist, came into my office, on the 15th floor of the Times building, the other day. My window, overlooking Seventh avenue, in Times Square, was wide open to let in the spring ozone. As my door was opened to admit the cartoonist, a sudden gust swept through the room, and a sheet of manuscript floated out into the air.

The artist was dismayed. He felt that it was his fault.

"I'll get it!" he cried. And before I could stop him, he was dashing madly for an elevator. As I looked out the window the manuscript was being carried high into the sky by the uprushing current of warm air that is perpetually rising from the crowded pavements. It floated gracefully toward the peak of the Paramount building, and at the 40-story level began an adventurous descent.

The excited cartoonist, walking-stick in hand, was now standing on the curb, awaiting the landing. He watched the paper with strained anxiety.

The tantalizing manuscript was eddied about above the teeming Square. It landed in the middle of the avenue, where traffic was thickest.

One doesn't think of cartoonists as heroes, but one never can tell. Brown bounded madly through the traffic, while policemen yelled warnings. He dived for the precious paper just as two taxicabs were trying to occupy the same spot at once. Both drivers cursed, but our hero was safe. So was the manuscript, which Brown bore proudly back to my office.

The adventurer was mussed and disheveled, but he wore a smile of triumph.

I unfolded the unsoiled sheet of paper. It was blank on both sides!

Riding homeward last night in a friend's car, I had a fine thrill. At 125th street and Seventh avenue we were stopped by shrill blasts of policemen's whistles. Across the avenue what seemed to be a convention of policemen was running. I never knew big men could run so fast, wearing overcoats and carrying guns in their hands.

The policemen seemed to be chasing a taxicab that was dodging in and out. A man was standing on the running board of the taxi. Policemen swarmed, and the taxi was forced to the curb. Meantime, every man in the vicinity was being grabbed by an arm of the law, and searched for weapons. Not a shot was fired. And we saw a small, furtive figure of a man climbing rapidly up a fire escape on an old loft building. Nobody seemed to see him, and apparently he got away.

What was happening? I don't know. But I suspect the fellow on the fire escape.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 6:32. Sun rises tomorrow 5:33.

There are some grouches so ingrained and gross-grained that they will kick about their own service in a cafeteria.

We have often wondered why we have such stringent laws regulating oleomargarine in Pennsylvania and then stand for most any other kind of scandalous grades of alleged genuine butter.

A new opera contains a prize-fight. A lot of them look like that to us.

So far this year over one hundred thousand more automobile licenses have been issued than were issued at this time last year. The automobile has not reached its peak yet. A few still do not have them, and many who have are not satisfied with the bus they have and want a better one.

They call the stuff they confiscate now "alleged whisky", but most of it can prove an alibi.

There's just as much nasty gossip. It has merely been transferred from the back fence to the magazines.

Aha! The House at Harrisburg has passed a law that will make the salaries of the county commissioners in Lawrence county three thousand dollars a year. This ought to create a new interest in that office among those who never thought much of it as a living-making job. Now the Senate and government will still have a say, and we hope they do the right thing and make it a law.

Despite equal rights, the average man will still stand up for women everywhere except in a trolley car.

We have an idea that after county commissioners in this county get a salary of three thousand dollars a year an attempt will be made to elect the entire board Democrats. That can be done, and the Republicans could have three members on the board, but have always been courteous and allowed the Dems one member. Any political party can have all the members if they have votes enough. There is no law governing the matter.

The last thing a New York man did before he shot himself was to write a penciled note which read: "Take care of the gold fish". The poor chap admitted himself that he was insane.

We don't believe the number of poorhouses has decreased during the past 10 years—not with the mortgages the automobile has placed on them.

Moving picture theaters in Pittsburgh do not display any naughty pictures on the sidewalks in front of the theaters any more. They display them in the lobbies of the theaters. Some birds are just naturally nasty.

Cigarettes, we read, cause most of the forest fires. Another argument, we presume, for one more constitutional amendment.

According to a ruling of a St. Louis judge, that those who stand around talking while a golf player is trying to make a drive from a tee, and the talk annoys him and he swipes one of the gabbers over the coco with a golf club in his anger, the one swiped cannot recover damages in a court. About the only time some birds do keep still is when they are trying to hit a golf ball, so you be governed accordingly.

A woman who is dying from bullets pumped into her by her husband hopes to meet him in the next world. Is she a bear for punishment, or does she figure on preparing an ambush for him?

It's funny the way a man will buck traffic, risking his life and limb, to rush across a street, and then spend 15 minutes on the other side watching the policeman direct traffic.

The man who won the mayoralty fight in Chicago won on the slogan, "America First". They must be going to try something new in Chicago now.

The citizens of Stoneboro have pledged $40,000 to an effort to make the mining of coal a good industry in that community. We cannot see how Stoneboro can fail to make good with such enthusiasm backed by that much money.

The clergyman's wife usually gets the wedding fees and, generally speaking, it's the only velvet she ever fingers.

Dear Hints and Dints:—

The scientists say the earth was not made in six days, as the Bible declares, but that it was millions of years in the making. For my part, I think six days was a fair allowance of time for the task. It must be remembered that the making of the earth—of the entire solar system for that matter—was but an infinitesimal part of the creative work of the Almighty. Let's look into it a little, not to bolster up my notion, but to set people to thinking. The diameter of the earth is less than 8,000 miles; that of the sun 882,000; of Betelguese 882,000,000. Sweeping through space at the rate of 19 miles per second, the earth in one year travels 560,000,000 miles—if it sought to cross the face of Betelguese it would have to increase its speed 50 per cent to get across in one year. Get that? Well, what was once thought to be a single star, the modern telescope separates into 60,000 stars! Of these star clusters, there is an enormous number, some open, others closely packed. The numbers of stars within telescopic range is estimated at 1,600,000,000, but nobody supposes these figures comprise the total number of spheres, for with every increase in telescopic power new ones come into view, and it seems reasonable to believe that the bright lights stretch on and on through infinity. How did these myriad orbs come into existence? One at a time, each being finished before another was started? And did it take longer to make a big star than a little one? Neptune is about 84 times as large as the earth; did it therefore take 84 times as long to make it? Now if the making of earth required 100,000,000 years, as some of the scientists say, how long did it take to fashion Betelguese? How long to manufacture the 1,600,000,000 visible stars and the hosts that doubtless lie beyond telescopic boundaries? Doesn't it really seem, then, as if six days was about all the time that could be spared for fashioning this little planet? If the Bible says six days, my guess would be six minutes.

A blacksmith who inherited half a million dollars says he will keep right on shoeing horses. Where will the horses come from to keep him busy?

We all have had a good time recollecting back 10 years at the outbreak of the war and how we went in and cleaned it up. But the Kaiser's recollections about April 6 were anything but pleasant, if we could find out anything about his mind. April 6, 1917, was just about the last of the Kaiser.

More often than not, we are in no doubt as to who is the beneficiary of the decision of a man when he states that he is out of politics for good.

There seems to be enough soiled political linen in the laundry in China to keep the Chinese busy for months to come without any fighting at meal times.

Perhaps it is the generous tip that makes the barbers the most polite of all. Maybe store clerks could be improved upon by a few hand-outs.

Eighteen per cent of the people of the United States pay the enormous income taxes that are paid. But the people who stand around on the street corners and tell what they make are not included. Their incomes don't seem to measure up to their mouth outgo.

Perhaps the reason we don't like some of these men who are constantly full of "pep" is because they are the spice of life that has no variety.

It is again time to be kind to dumb animals, and, having one in mind to whom we think the greatest kindness would be to whack it over the head, we are laying our plans accordingly.

A man who has investigated the matter says the world's beards have been reduced 20 per cent since the safety razor became popular, even the Russians having taken to shaving. Chalk up one for the safety if it can effect reform in Russia.

We hope that April is more considerate than March was. We got a couple of weeks of delightful weather last month—and then spring came.

A famous boar named Colonel Broadcaster and fourteen other pedigreed American swine were sent to Greece Wednesday. The mountains that look on Marathon will soon see finer pigs rooting along the beach than they ever saw before.

Poetry is above pigs, but pigs that America sends to Greece will do Greece more good than the poetry that Byron wrote.

Greece has won for herself the freedom that Byron wished her. She couldn't win without foreign help such as a pedigreed pig like Broadcaster.

The American people now have eleven thousand million dollars invested in foreign countries. This doesn't include ten thousand millions lent by the United States to foreign nations in the war—thus purchasing the hatred of those nations.

If you are tempted by usurious interest rates on European bonds, be careful at least to watch your investments closely.

Soon, before members of a solemn Roosevelt club in Boston, Senator Borah and Dr. Butler of Columbia University, will debate "Should the prohibition amendment be taken out of the constitution?"

They might as well debate "Should the moon be made of green cheese?" The eighteenth amendment will not be taken out of the constitution.

But the Volstead act, which interprets the eighteenth amendment, might be replaced by another act, interpreting it otherwise.

What, if anything, should be done to the Volstead act, to which many attribute our bootleggers, hijackers, high school whiskey drinkers and crime wave?

That is a reasonable question.

Secretary Hoover says the railroads are now in fine condition, supplying "completely adequate service." He thinks this "vindicates private ownership."

Private ownership of railroads is going to stay as long as prosperity stays—everbody knows that. If things become very bad, of course, railroads would say to the government, "Please take us."

It should not be overlooked, and Secretary Hoover knows it, that the United States post office also gives "completely adequate service," and is not under private ownership. Hoover couldn't imagine any private enterprise carrying a letter from the southern tip of Florida to the northern end of Alaska for two cents.

This country entered the World War officially ten years ago Wednesday. And when we did go we went in with a splash, millions of men sent across ocean, to countries that wouldn't have sent us one man under similar conditions. Billions of dollars sent to countries that wouldn't have sent us 35 cents under similar conditions.

We don't regret it; nothing is more valuable than experience, even if you don't make the world quite safe for democracy. But let's hope we will be cautious about going into future wars, and especially about paying nations as much as five billion dollars apiece to dislike us.

One readers is amazed that doctrines of the Russian "Red Communists" should be taken up so greedily in China. There is no call for amazement. Here, where many of us own something, we don't think much of communism. But in China, where 300,000,000 haven't got much of anything, a suggestion to divide might be carried.

Japan having learned to do everything in a big way has what even the United States would call a big failure. The great Tokyo firm of Suzuki suspends payments, with liabilities of a quarter of a billion dollars, half a billion yen. This caused Japanese exchange to drop, but it will come back. A nation that can't be shaken by such earthquakes as Japan has had will not be shaken by one or a dozen big failures.

Lord Denbigh, who is on his way across the Atlantic for a pleasure tour of America, is the holder of an ancient and historic English title, the first Earl of Denbigh having been killed while fighting for Charles I in 1622. The present earl, who is the ninth of his line, was born in 1859, and was once lord in waiting to Queen Victoria and to King Edward VII. For thirty years, since he succeeded to his title in 1892, he has been colonel commandant of the famous Honourable Artillery Company of London. During the same period he has been president of the Roman Catholic Association in England. In 1923, his first wife having died some years previous, the Earl of Denbigh was married to Miss Kathleen Emmet, daughter of the late Dr. Thomas Addis Emmet of New York, who died in 1919, leaving an estate of more than $1,000,000.

Dr. Crane's Editorial

SUSPENDERS

The merchant tailors of America get together once a year and issue edicts about what kind of clothes we should wear.

There is very little change in men's clothes, but the merchant tailors try to keep their fingers upon the pulse of what change there is.

They are now declaring that suspenders are coming back.

They seem to think that trousers hang more gracefully and look better when they are held up by suspenders than by a belt.

After all the belt is a precarious institution and if a man wants to be on the safe side he must, although wearing a belt, have also suspenders.

These much maligned articles of apparel have reason in their favor. The shoulders are the place to support the weight of one's clothes.

One beauty of men's attire is that they have never compressed the body at the waist nor hung from the waist, making an undue weight thereon.

If women are discarding skirts and shirt waists and hang their dingfads from the shoulders, why shouldn't men?

A lot of men are so architecturally constructed that their pantaloons will not stay up without suspenders and then they don't like the gap this discloses between their nether garments and their vest.

This takes no reckoning at all of gentlemen who go in their shirt sleeves and are inclined to put their thumbs under their suspenders while they are issuing various opinions.

What the backwoods statesman would do without a place to loop his hands while coruscating is not said.

The vest is no substitute, for often he does not have a vest.

The emancipated male will rejoice in the suspender, for as much as abhors the gallows he is in favor of the galluses.

Of course having six buttons to which to attach the suspenders is a good deal of bother, but they assist in the artistic draping of the pantaloons, and if we must have trousers, which are the despair of artists, let us have them look as well as possible.

Every young man knows that the hardest article of his apparel to keep in ship shape is his trousers. In order to preserve the nice crease down the front it costs a good deal to send them every week to the tailor, and it is a good deal of a nuisance at night to put them between the mattresses. Four our part, a man who wears only a belt looks always like he is coming loose. We remember David Warfield's chorus about "He's Losin' 'Em" and it seems as though the man with the belt could appropriately be singing this anthem.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

Be An Optomist.

The United States Steel Corporation has paid dividends pretty steadily, and had amassed such a large surplus that finally Judge Cary, became willing to advise the Directors to divide a part of this surplus with the stockholders by way of a stock dividend, but the most sanguine of the steel stockholders had no idea that the corporation had earned a surplus after the payment of all dividends, in excess of a billion dollars. Such a state of affairs was disclosed by the recent publication of the annual report of the corporation.

It is unnecessary to repeat the croakings of the pessimists emitted at the time the corporation began business in 1901. It was capitalized, it will be remembered, for eleven hundred million dollars, and it owed a bonded indebtedness of more than half a billion. There was time shortly after the corporation began business, when the combined market price of its stock issue was about fifty percent of its face value. Judge Cary and his associates went serenely along however, earning money, and now it is announced that since April 1901 the corporation has earned $2,345,308,723, out of which it has paid its dividends, and still has a billion dollars left.

To get an idea of the magnitude of the corporation and its sources of profit other than the direct manufacture of steel, one must read the last few pages of the report. There one finds the summary of its great system of railroads, with main line, branch lines, second tracks, sidings, etc., aggregating 3794 miles. These main tracks would reach from New York to Chicago, and beyond, and its total trackage would reach clear across the continent and then some. Its equipment for these lines consists of 1445 locomotives, 61,202 freight train cars, and 64,064 work cars and equipment. It owns 124 steamers, 401 steel barges, and 66 other kinds of marine carriers. So much for transportation.

On page 42 of the report, it is discovered that the corporation has nearly half a million acres of coking coal, more than 300,000 acres of steam and gas coal, and a like amount of surface coal. It has 16,110 bee hive coking ovens, and 3284 by-product coke ovens. All this in addition to the many ore mines which it owns and leases.

When the number of manufacturing plants which fabricate nearly every kind of steel is taken into consideration, even the pessimist will have to admit that there are some things in the world that were not written down in his philosophy.

THE LECTURE BUREAU ROUTEMAKER

A route-maker died and the "talent" on earth
Received the sad news with a chuckle of mirth.
"We know not," they said, "where his soul may have flown,
But we hope it has gone by a route of his own.
If it's upward he's bound may he travel by freight;
May he sit in a station with six hours to wait;
May he ride on a train with no diner attached,
And get to the gates and find all of them latched.

"May he ride till he's weary and then ride some more,
Till he's faint and disheartened, discouraged and sore;
May all his connections have long hours between;
May he never get into a hotel that's clean.
May his baggage grow heavy, his train jump the track;
May he get to a place, with no chance to get back;
May he sit in a station from midnight till three,
Where there's nothing but posters on travel to see.

"And then when at last he arrives at the gate,
May St. Peter inform him, "in here you've no date!
It's only the "talent" who come here to rest.
We don't want a route-maker here with the blest!
Move on with your baggage. Continue to ride!
Pack up your instructions, and pick up your guide!
And route yourself now for an aeon or two,
Catch the first local south and collect what is due."

Cotton Farmer Loss Blamed On Market System

Bankruptcy Of Growers Is Result Of Methods Of Handling Product

Expert Sees Relief For Planters In Diversified Crops

(International News Service)

ATLANTA, April 8.—Bankruptcy of hundreds of farmers in the southeast in the past few years is blamed on the "rotten system of marketing" by Martin Amorous, state cotton statistician and agricultural economist.

Amorous, who has spent years in the cultivation and study of cotton has invited farmers and agricultural economists anywhere in the country to suggest some plan which would be a good substitute for the present marketing system known as the United States cotton futures act.

"In the present system of marketing," he says, "there is no element of supply and demand fixing the prices of the farmers cotton. If the farmers produce 16,000,000 bales of cotton in one year, and the mills actually need 15,000,000 bales in that same year, the farmer is compelled to sell the 15,000,000 at less than cost to produce and throw in the other million bales as bonus.

Producers' Profits.

"In all other articles of commerce the producers get a profitable price on actual demand and are thus enabled to margin and carry the surplus if any. If the saw mill men produce more lumber than they can sell, they get a profit on every car, they sell and carry the surplus. Even if it rots in the pile, they still can pay their debts.

"I assert the bankruptcy of the farmer is due to the rotten system of marketing, accredited by the United States government under what is known as the United States cotton futures act. Under this law, New York is the final market for all cotton grown in the United States. The New York cotton exchange is limited to trade in one grade of cotton, known as middling 7-8 inch, and the longest staple. This grade is only 25 per cent of the normal crop.

"The pricing of all other grades is fixed at 10 local spot markets, and once a month the average prices of these spot markets are used on the New York cotton exchange to settle differences in future contracts. All cotton mills protect the price level for the year by trading on the New York cotton exchange.

Delivering Cotton

"The Mills make four separate trades before getting a bale of cotton into their plants, two of which are made on the exchange. The spot cotton merchant who contracts to supply the actual cotton makes five different trades before delivering the bale to the mill, two of which are made on the exchange. The mills in Georgia do not buy their cotton from Georgia farmers and they have no advantage in buying cotton over the mill in Massachusetts despite the fact the cotton may be grown next door."

Diversified farming is the only solution in sight for the cotton farmer, Amorous says.

IMMUNIZATION FOR DIPHTEHRIA IS DISCUSSED

what this wonderful treatment will do is shown in the village of Lowellville, Ohio with a population of about 2,500 had an average of 10 cases of diphtheria for many years before the treatment of toxin anti-toxin was used. When the treatment was given in 1924 they had 8 cases that year but 6 of those were prior to June when the treatment had not been given. In July there was 1 case, in October another and since that time until last week there has not been a single case of the disease. Last week a case developed in a negro family that came from the south last summer and had not yet been tested or immunized.

Explains Treatment

In explaining just what this toxin anti-toxin treatment is Dr. Elder said that it was placing within the body of the subject a small amount of the poison of the disease not sufficient to cause the subject to contract the disease but of a sufficient amount to stimulate the system to form anti-toxin to combat even the starting of the disease of diphtheria. Thus this treatment works in diphtheria as vaccination works in preventing small pox.

Immuniziation Process

Dr. Elder says that there is only one sure way of securing immunization from diphtheria. That is to introduce the toxin into the system. We have our choice of two methods of doing this either breathing the toxin or germ from a person already inflicted with the disease and thus get a bad case of the disease and if we recover we are immune, or the other method by which a very small amount of the toxin is injected into the body by a hypodermic needle not sufficient to cause the disease but enough to make the subject immune. Which way would we rather choose?

In speaking about reactions from the treatments, Dr. Elder said that there would be reaction the same as in small pox vaccination but that there have been practically no cases where the action was severe. In 30,000 doses given under his direction he know of only one severe reaction. This was in the case of a young woman teacher who if she had informed them of certain conditions they would not have treated her at that time. She developed a rash and was out of school for two weeks.

Dr. Elder says that about 50 per cent of all persons tested react negatively and thus are likely not susceptible to the disease. The number of doses given a child which reacts positively to the test is generally 3 but, he said, in a person over 12 years of age he would advise 4 or 5 doses to make certain.

Dr. Shoaff Speaks

Dr. P. A. Shoaff, president of the Lawrence County Medical Society spoke of conditions before 1895 when the death rate in cases of diphtheria was 40 to 50 per cent and never under 40 per cent, but by the discovery of the use of anti-toxin about that time those who were already inflicted with the disease were often saved by this discovery and the death rate was reduced to 15 per cent. But now what shall we do with this 15 per cent. It can be reduced to 0 by the use of this new discovery and powerful weapon toxin anti-toxin if all will co-operate.

Dr. H. C. Harper, State Medical Director for Lawrence County then spoke of what diphtheria really is. In children it often takes the form of diphtheria of the larnyx which is commonly known as membraneous croup. It is a terrible disease that especially attacks helpless children. He said that teachers and parents should protect these little children that are not able to look out for themselves, and we now have an opportunity to do that by helping with the program of immunization to be put forward by the schools of the city and county. He described very vividly the throes of a little child inflicted with this terrible disease.

Used In Some Schools Here

Dr. Harper said that now this toxin anti-toxin could be secured free at almost any drug store by a physician and that any good physician can administer the treatment. He said that it had been used in the schools of Union township and the West Side schools. He said of all that he knew of that had been treated with 3 doses he had not known of one single case of diphtheria. He knew of one supposed case where there had been only 2 doses given but no test had been made to prove this positively was a case of diphtheria. It might have been merely tonsiltis.

Ask Parents Permission

Dr. Mildred Rogers, medical inspector of the New Castle Public Schools explained how on the Wednesday and Thursday after Easter vacation blanks would be given to the parents or guardians of each child explaining the treatment and a permission slip for the signature of the parent signifying their permission for the scholar to be given the immunization treatment. She asked the teachers to give their best co-operation in presenting themselves for treatment and explaining to scholars and parents just what it meant. She said it was on account of the splendid co-operation of pupils in Youngstown that they were able to so successfully carry the program through.

Dr. R. G. Campbell in a few remarks told how New Castle and Lawrence county were far behind other communities in carrying out this great service for the school children.

The program was closed by the showing of a film called "The Old and the New." This picture showed the progress in the fight against diphtheria since the time of the Civil War when nearly half of the cases were taken by death, then in 1900 when anti-toxin saved all but 15 per cent of the cases and now with the use of toxin anti-toxin the disease can be entirely prevented and family ties remain unbroken.

All participating in the program impressed upon the minds of all present that if this program was put through that it would be the best thing that had been done in the health line for the schools of the city and county for many years.

SENIOR PLAYERS PRESENT "CHARM" IN ABLE MANNER

boy who has three different stages in life to overcome and the part is in most capable hands. Cotton, alias Joe Pond is just a foolish boy to start with, but after Klein sells him that inexpensive book on "Charm" he undergoes a fixed transformation that elevates him to the pinnacle of girlish fame and he immediately becomes the social lion of the village. Joe wouldn't give anybody a very big thrill in the first act as he appears in his homespun clothes that fits him like a $5 palm beach suit after a dip in the ocean.

Shedding his make-up much after the manner of a snake in spring Joe emerges in the second act looking every bit as though he had just stepped off Fifth avenue and for the remainder of the play he just knocks them cold with his graceful, lively mannerism and "it." Yes Joe gets what he goes after the "prize package."

The "prize package" of the evening happened to be Harriet Martin in the role of Ida May Harper the foolish girl who listened to the alluring tales of New York's night life too long at one time and caught the fever.

Ida May is determined that she will not miss her golden opportunity and straightway informs her mother and father that she is going to desert the family table for the salads of the metropolis. But there is just one thing wrong, she rather likes Joe Pond but he seems to be a sort of dull uninteresting creature with no get-up. Joe loves the girl of course and together with mother and father perfects a plan to save the day and also his future housewife. Miss Martin fills the role of Ida May to perfection and she has the audience with her the entire time, everybody's glad when she wakes up to the fact that she really does love Joe after all and that her hallucination for New York is only a mistake. This same part will be taken by Lida Fischler tonight.

Dickey Is New Star

Thomas Dickey, a newcomer to school theatrical circles, was entrusted with the part of Mr. Harper, the father of Ida May, and young Dickey uncorked the aged parent stuff in first-class shape. He made a grand old man, and while newfangled ideas of the modern age were just a little more than he could stand, Mr. Harper masters a fond desire to go to bed and aids in the plot to make it interesting for his daughter. Just like all fathers, though, he goes about his work in grumbling fashion and with one eye on the hero all the time he proves to be a good sport and they have a lot of fun with father before the plot is done.

Lucille Emery, in the role of Mrs. Harper, handles her part without reproach. Mother Harper has her trials and tribulations, like all mothers, and the thought of losing her darling daughter spurs her to almost desperate measures, even to appearing in negligee before her most intimate friends, including the minister; but mother love overcomes her pride and she goes through with her part in the plot to keep Ida May from the oily shieks of the great White Way. Miss Emery is mighty good in her part and displays an abundant quality of talent.

The village talkfest, Mrs. Wilson, otherwise Sara Cobau, is one of the loud-speaking type. Miss Cobau is another newcomer to amateur show circles and her work is satisfactory in every degree. William, "Bill" Kirk takes the part of Mr. Lester, the rich New Yorker and play-boy, and he nearly gets Ida May. Kirk is just the type of man that girls fall for at first glance and then lose sight of when they woke up. The youth handles his part fine. DeWayne Glenn, as Doc Garfield, the village doctor and drugstore owner, takes his part very well. "Doc" has a hard time to keep Joe from all the women in the town, but Joe finally comes to.

Rev. Paxton, the town minister, is taken by George Trainor in a most capable manner, although he has very little to say or do outside of listening in. Mrs. Paxton, wife of the pastor, is played by Rosalind Ehrlich in a most acceptable manner. The part will be taken by Marian Griffith tonight. The guest list at the Harper "souper" (French for supper, by the way), includes Madaline Marlin, as Miss Mildred; Betty Houston, as Babe; Bertha Lelenko, as Violet; Norman Lockhart Lelenko, as Violet; Norman Cotton as Claude, the sweetheart of Violet, and Julia McClenahan as Mabel. All of the boys and girls were mighty good in their parts. Claude gets into a barroom fight with Joe Pond toward the close of the play and the tussle looks for all the world like a grudge fight, but of course, it's not.

That "souper" scene in the Harper homestead, folks, is a scream and one of the high spots in the play. There is plenty of comedy, some pathos and real heart-touching tones to the plot.

The play is another Clara Hartsuff success from start to finish. Miss Hartsuff adds another link to her already large chain of local amateur productions. It's just a habit that has been formed by Miss Hartsuff, and she can produce the stuff that takes with the audience.

Between the second and third act four dainty young girls, to-wit: Mary Whalen, Audrey Baker, Joe Sowersby and Hazel Bergland, appear before the footlights and go through two very modern and intricate dances. Flo Ziegfeld overlooked a good bet if he doesn't sign this quartet up. They can step, and how.

Of course, the evening hours are made lively by the high school orchestra, under the direction of LaVerne Irvine. The orchestra selections were like other Senior High orchestra concerts, presented in a manner that takes unusually well.

There was so much talent in the senior class this year that it was found necessary to double on many of the parts. The following will appear tonight in roles: Eleanor Hutchinson as Mrs. Harper, Harriet Biven as Mildred, Claire May Lindsay as Babe, Mary Rhodes as Violet, and Robert McKenzie as Claude.

If you want to laugh, if you want to cry, or if you just want to be entertained, don't miss the second production tonight, that's the tip.

Following is the cast of characters as they appeared on the stage:

Mrs. Wilson, Sara Cobau.
Mrs. Harper — Lucille Emery, Thursday evening.
Joe Pond—Norman Cotton.
Mr. Harper—Tom Dickey.
Ida May Harper—Harriet Martin, Thursday evening.
Mr. Lester—William Kirk.
Klein—James Blanning.
Doc Garfield—De Wayne Glenn.
Mr. Paxton—George Trainor.
Mrs. Paxton—Rosalind Ehrlich.
Miss Mildred—Madaline Marlin.
Babe—Betty Houston.
Violet—Bertha Lelenko.
Claude—Norman Lockhart.
Mabel—Julia McClenahan.

First Man To Sort Mail On Train Takes To Road Again At 87 In Flivver

"GRANDPA" YOUNGS CRANKING HIS "FLIVVER"

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

SAN ANTONIO Tex., April .8—"Grandpa" Youngs, who voted for Lincoln and was an appointee under President U. S. Grant, claims to be America's oldest professional tourist. Not only that, he tells how he "invented" the sorting of mail on postal cars—and nearly got "fired" for it.

He is 87 and his business is seeing the country.

A dapper little figure with a trim white mustache and a flowing beard, Grandpa is known in the camps where flivvering sightseers shake out their tents from New York to California and from the Gulf of Mexico to Minneapolis. Twenty years ago, when he first took to the road he discarded his first name, and says he has not signed it more than half a dozen times since.

Grandpa has no fixed system to his touring. He follows the blue sky. He says he began nowhere in particular and his destination is eternity.

Born in Ohio.

Friends know him, however, as Robert M. Youngs, who was born in a little Ohio town, and whose career has always been picturesque. When he was five his family moved to Burlington, Ia. Two months after the inauguration of U. S. Grant as president, Youngs was appointed agent of the distributing postoffice of Burlington.

A year indoors was enough. Youngs sought more movement and became a mail clerk on the Chicago to Cedar Rapids run. Up to that time mail never had been sorted in transit, this being done at the distributing postoffices.

One night on the way to Chicago Youngs had nothing to do, so he sorted out all the mail for points beyond the Windy City, tied it in bundles and put it into several boxes. When he reached Chicago he handed the boxes proudly to the postal authorities, but they were incensed.

"They threatened me with dismissal," he says, "but Grant came to my rescue, declaring it was a good idea, and told me to work out a system."

Thus originated the practice of sorting mail in railway cars.

Another Claim.

After the Civil war "Grandpa" acted as secretary of the pension department for Union soldiers. He insists he can still call the first names of 2,500 men who were on his records, if given the surname.

At the Reupblican convention in Chicago in June, 1924, "Grandpa" was the only man present who had voted for Lincoln, and was called on for a speech.

Youngs believes the way to be happy is to live as your instincts dictate, and his heart is lightest when he is in the open and on the move.

Selecting Jury In Hewitt Case Is Tedious Task

May Go Into Second Week — Youth Charged With Double Crime

(International News Service)

JEFFERSON, O., April 8.—Prospects that the laborious task of selecting a jury to try Floyd Hewitt, 16-year-old alleged slayer of Mrs. Fred Brown and her 5-year-old son, Fred, Jr., would extend into the second week, were seen here early today, as the third panel of 50 veniremen reported for duty. The second panel of 50 men and women was exhausted last night, with 11 tentative jurors in the box, but with the defense still having 16 of its peremptory challenges left for use, while the state still had four challenges remaining.

Mrs. Brown and her son were brutally clubbed to death in their home near Conneaut several weeks ago, the slayer using a baseball bat and a poker. Hewitt confessed the double killing soon after his arrest, but later repudiated his confession and entered a plea of not guilty to the slaying of the child, for which the state elected to try him first.

Many jurors have disqualified themselves by declaring they held fixed opinions in the case, or by asserting they were opposed to capital punishment. The state is seeking the death penalty for Hewitt, despite his youth.

The 11 tentative jurors seated early today included three women.

Hewitt, more than six feet tall, and adult in appearance, continued to sit impassively in the courtroom, appearing not to realize that the trial involves a matter of life and death for him.

One Is Killed; Three Injured In Family Quarrel

(International News Service)

FREEMONT, O., April 8.—Audrey Smith, 14, is dead. Dorothy Smith, 17, her sister, is in a hospital with her right arm torn off by a shotgun charge, and Charles Brandell, 38, stepfather of the girls, is reported dying and his wife is seriously injured, as the result of a family quarrel early today. Brandell shot the girls and clubbed their mother on the head with a shotgun, turning the gun upon himself, after his stepdaughters had returned from a dance, and he had reprimanded them for "staying out so late," and voiced objection to two youths who escorted them to the dance.

AMAZING RECOVERY OF PENSIONED CARNEGIE WORKER DUE TO DRECO

James T. Carroll Is Enjoying Perfect Health And Hasn't A Pain In His Body. Gained 20 Pounds In Weight

"I worked for the Carnegie Steel Co. for 30 years and know most everyone there but few of them recognize me now since Dreco has made such a wonderful change in me," declared Mr. James T. Carroll, R. D. No. 3, Pulaski Rd., this city, in a recent conversation with the Dreco man at Eckerd's Cut Rate Store.

"All the boys at the works know the old "Dad" Carroll, the thin, rheumatic, swollen jointed physical wreck, who used to have stomach trouble so bad he had to live on oatmeal and milk and who lost many a day from work because of illness.

"But that old man is gone, forever, and the new "Dad" Carroll has taken his place. And I do actually feel new, for my stomach will digest the biggest plate of ham and cabbage, or beans or anything else I care to eat without any distress whatever. My wife says a loaf of bread used to last a week and now it only lasts a day.

"The rheumatism has left me, too, and all winter long I've been working outside and haven't suffered from a cold or a twinge of rheumatism. I've put on 20 pounds in weight and feel just like a three year old in every way."

For old persons who are weak and run down or for delicate children there is no better reconstructive tonic than Dreco. It builds up the appetite, aids the stomach in digesting the food, keeps the bowels moving, strengthens the nerves, and promotes sound sleep.

Mr. S. P. Thorp, the well-known Expert from the Dreco-Laboratories now at Eckerd's Cut Rate Store, is telling scores of people every day how to take Dreco for best results. Go to see him. His advise is free.

England's Flexible Legal Machinery Is Nemesis Of Crime

(International News Service)

EVANSTON, Ill., April 8.—England's flexible legal machinery was declared by Dr. William Searle Holdsworth, Vinerian professor of law at Oxford University, to be one reason why crime is less of a problem there than in the United States.

Dr. Holdsworth has been delivering a series of lectures at Northwestern University Law School.

"England is ahead of the United States in the administration of both civil and criminal law," said Dr. Holdsworth, 'because it has adjusted itself to changing conditions. Over there we have changed the statutes, while in your country you keep on under the old Common Law.

"Another feature in the legal procedure of England that should not be overlooked is the empowering of the central courts to make final decisions. This prevents disputes between subordinate judiciary branches. The British law, however, is not the same throughout the island empire, for Scotland and Wales differ save as to common law."

Dr. Holdsworth is scheduled to deliver lectures at Columbia University, New York, and other eastern institutions and in June will deliver the formal dedicatory address in the new Levy Mayer Hall of Law at Northwestern. He will return to Oxford early in July according to present plans.

China has the longest national anthem in the world.

Many Of Churches In New York City Filled Each Sunday

By ARTHUR WIMER,
(New York Corespondent New Castle News.)

NEW YORK, April 8.—In spite of the fact that New York has long been represented at home and abroad as being one of the most wicked metropolitan centers in the world the city in reality enthusiastically supports its hundreds of churches both through community and individual efforts. Today the churches of New York will seat 500,000 more persons than all the theatres of Manhattan combined. Yet few vacant pews may ever be found in the edifices during services.

In fact it is with dificulty that a seat may be obtained in many of the churches throughout New York. Some few issue tickets weeks in advance which entitle the bearer to admission to services on a specified Sunday. At the St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth avenue one is required to pay 25 cents at the door. The Park avenue Baptist church of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor for John D. Rockefeller, makes a practice of reserving pews for the public three weeks in advance of the services. The majority of the seats however are rented by the year to members.

On a recent occasion the writer who is a reporter on the Sunday staff of the New York Times, had a rather unique experience when covering a service for the Times at Dr. Fosdick's church. When he arrived he found that every seat in the main auditorium was occupied the press box filled and the basement where amplifiers had been installed, thronged with standees. But a representative of the press is denied nothing in New York and after failing to locate a vacant pew the sexton conducted the writer to the pulpit and seated him beside Dr. Fosdick.

A study of the various denominations represented in New York and of the languages spoken from the pulpits presents an interesting survey and emphasizes the cosmopolitan make-up of the city. In Manhattan proper, disregarding the suburban districts and boroughs, are found the following church groups:

African Methodists, 7; Baptists, 28; Catholic Apostolic 2; Calvinistic, 1; Christian Scientist 12; Congregational, 5; Disciples of Christ, 2; Evangelistical Association, 4; Friends, 2; Greek Catholic, 10; Jewish, 77; Lutheran, 34; Methodist Episcopal, 34; Maravian, 2; Presbyterian, 44; Presbyterian Reformed, 2; Presbyterian United, 2; Protestant Episcopal, 63; Reformed Episcopal, 1; Reformed Church, 19 Reformed Catholic, 1; Roman Catholic, 109; Seventh Day Adventists, 5; Spiritualists, 1; Universalist, 1; Unitarian, 2; Miscellaneous, 26.

Many nationalities have churches in which their own language is spoken. The foreign language organizations comprise Bohemian, 5; Chinese, 1; French, 4; Hungarian, 3; Italian, 6; Japanese, 1; Polish, 2; Russian 1; Slovak, 2; Spanish, 2; Swedish, 5; Servian, 1 and Welsh 2.

Builder Of Omaha Is Dead In Boston

Benjamin Franklin Smith, 96, Richest Man In New England

BOSTON, April 8.—Benjamin Franklin Smith, 96, said to have been the wealthiest man in New England, is dead at his winter home here. He was a resident of Rockport, Me.

Descended from pioneers who settled in Berwick, Me., in 1668, Smith was the last of four brothers who pushed westward seventy years ago, literally built the city of Omaha, struck gold, built the second largest stockyard in the world and amassed a final fortune that was reputed to run to more than $50,000,000.

The four Smith brothers, Francis, who died in 1908 at the age of 83; David Clifford, who died at 84; George Warren, who lived until he was 97, and Benjamin, left their boyhood home in South Freedom, Me., together for their first joint venture—selling lithographic prints of the nation's presidents. The business later was expanded to include steel engravings of views of the principal cities of the country.

Start West After Panic

After the financial panic of 1857 the brothers started their westward trek to Omaha. There Francis established a bank for the cattle men of the district, and when gold was discovered in the Rockies, Benjamin loaded five covered wagons with supplies for the mining camps. He took in $700 in gold dust on the day he arrived at Denver and evolved the idea of acquiring mines of his own.

In 1861 the brothers bought up a quartz claim that later proved to be rich in gold and three years later Benjamin returned to New York to invest a rapidly growing surplus in bonds and establish the Smith, Parmelee Gold Mining Co. of New York.

Omaha had grown to a city of 16,000 when he returned in 1868 and the Smith brothers were firmly established as powers in the city. The mine, and the troubles of operating a rich claim in wild frontier days, occupied the brothers for the next few years.

Later he began the erection of the South Omaha stockyards. Starting in 1882 with an investment of $20,000 in one house and 2,000 acres of land, the venture grew, despite opposition from Chicago and Kansas City packers, into the second largest plant of its kind in the world, representing a total outlay of more than $10,000,000.

Interest Is Shown In Corn Borer Battle

Leesburg Folks Turn Out In Large Numbers For Meeting

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., April 8.—That the people of the Leesburg community are interested in community progress is proven from the number that attended the meeting held in that town when W. S. Hagar, County Farm Agent, addressed them on the subject of European Corn Borer.

D. G. Keller, assistant in the office of Mr. Hagar talked on club work. The talk of Mr. Hagar was devoted to the regulations of the federal government for the eradication of the borer in this county.

His bureau is given charge of the educative work by the federal government prefacing the imposing of the regulations on May 1st by a force of federal men.

Miss Mary Noll, deputy recorder, who announced subject to the decision of the primaries of the Democratic party held in September, makes known today her candidacy for that office.

Miss Noll needs no introduction to the Mercer county voters. Twenty years of service in the office for which she is a candidate has given her a wide circle of acquaintanceship which her friends point out will make her a factor in the race.

Miss Noll has been a life long resident of Mercer. She is the daughter of the late George Noll, the family making their home here for 30 years.

Harold M. Hall has been appointed an auditor of Clarksville borough to replace a vacancy. Seven voters of that town signed the petition asking that the court make the appointment.

Court Stenographer Gordon Miller will spend the coming week in New Castle. A dual court session will be held in that city with Judge T. J. Prather of Crawford county assisting Judge Hildebrand of Lawrence county.

It is stated that a very heavy list of criminal cases are listed for trial in the south county.

ENON VALLEY

Mrs. J. L. Dutch, who has been spending a few days with friends and relatives near Pittsburgh, returned to her home here on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. W. G. Inboden and daughter Florence, were in Beaver Falls on Monday evening.

Mrs. Fred Stark and nephew were in Beaver Falls and New Castle on Wednesday.

Wm. Zich was in New Castle, Thursday.

The congregational meeting of the Presbyterian church, was held in the Community Hall on Wednesday evening.

Miss Peggy and Billie Donnels are spending the week with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Inboden.

Belgium's plan to reorganize its telephone and telegraph services on the same basis of the recent railway reorganization is expected to be put through later despite the delay caused by inter-departmental difficulties regarding details.

The Chinese have special fans for the three seasons of spring, summer and autumn.

Japan Sends Woman To Study Singing

(International News Service)

TOKYO, April 8.—Miss Yoshiko Nagasaka has been selected by the Ministry of Education as the first Japanese woman vocalist to be sent abroad to study music at the expense of the government. She will leave Tokio in April for Italy where she will study for three years.

Miss Nagasaka is a graduate of the Tokio Academy of Music and has been an associate professor at that institution. The government has at different times, sent pianists and violinist to study abroad but no woman vocalist has been sent hitherto.

Reveals Site Of Ancient Indian Town

Relics Of Algonquins Proved By Student Of Race

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., April 8.—Potsherds, or broken pieces of Indian pottery, discovered on a mound at the head of Oak Orchard creek near Waterport by Dr. William D. McFadden of Middleport, establish that place as the site of an ancient Algonquin village.

The Algonquins are known to have lived in this part of the country on several occasions, but archaeologists heretofore have been unable to find any traces of their habitations. It now is expected that the discovery of Algonquin relics by Dr. McFadden will throw a new light upon the occupancy of the Indians.

Dr. McFadden is of the opinion that the potsherds are souvenirs of the third visit of the Algonquins. The pottery bears the Algonquin stamped line design, a series of short parallel lines running diagonally at the top of the vessels. The design, however, was stamped onto the clay before it was baked, instead of being engraved as was done by the Iroquois tribesmen.

A crude mould was used by the Algonquin potter and the indications are that Dr. McFadden's discoveries date back about the year 1000, although it is known that the Algonquins visited this region as early as 10,000 B. C.

Civilization High

The Algonquins of the third occupation period had reached quite an advanced stage of civilization according to Dr. McFadden. They were adept in pottery and implement making and their flint arrow heads were an improvement on the Iriquois arrowheads of a much later day, which were often made in the shape of a simple triangle.

Dr. McFadden spends his vacations camping on the Tonawanda reservation.

"I pitch my tent anywhere I wish", he said, "and go away and leave it for hours, sometimes days, at a time. When I return not one article of my things has been taken nor misplaced or even touched.

"At dusk I build my fire and sit in front of my tent and smoke. Often an old Indian friend of mine joins me. We sit for hours and not a word passed between us. If he were a white man and did not talk I should think he were peeved, and if I didn't keep up the chatter he would think the same of me. But as it is, I tell you there is no greater friendship.

Dr. McFadden has one of the largest collections of arrowheads and other Indian relics in the country. He has more than 12,000 specimens which he has collected over a period of nearly 20 years. He has most of his collection in his office, mounted in glass cases and so arranged as to show the history of the Indians in this continent.

Industrial and Warlike

"The Algonquins were an industrial and warlike people. They were a frugal race and did not toss their arrowheads about to be found in later ages in great abundances as in the case of other red men. Their language included a number of labials—words made with the lips, while the Iroquois tongue is guttural."

Although at one time the Algonquin tribe was by far the largest of any Indian tribes in North America, it suffered nearly the same fate as ancient Rome, and now few Indians anywhere in the country can lay claim to being a pure Algonquin descendant.

The machinery for probing secrets of craftsmen dead for thousands of years, described as the most complete modern science now offers, was the personal gift of Stanley Field, president of the institution.

The mystery of how "sounding castiron" was made, lost with the passing of Chinese craftsmen early in the Christian is among the lost arts museum officials hope to rediscover.

Another object is the discovery if possible of the various ailments causing the death of mummified Egyptians. Hitherto it has been necessary to dissect the mummies but because scientists were loath to destroy the specimens, the research progressed slowly.

The art of making castiron that rings when struck, with the deep musical tones of a modern bronze bell, died with the passing of the Chinese craftsmen between 200 B. C. and 200 A. D. Modern castiron is "dead" and lacks any semblance of the musical properties of the ancient metal.

Many excellent samples of the Chinese iron are available at the museum for the studies, it was announced.

The work so far has been confined to the classification of natural history specimens for which the apparatus was primarily desired.

One fish was found by means of the X-ray to have swallowed a smaller fish just before being captured. The skeleton shadow of the smaller fish stands out clearly from the skeleton shadow of the larger fish.

Hungarian Author Wills Sum Of Money For Aid Of Writers

(International News Service)

BUDAPEST, April 8. — The fortune of the Hungarian author, Ferencz Baumgartner, who died last month, has been left as a fund for struggling young authors. He left his money, about $100,000 in a trust to be used to help authors to have their works published and to maintain themselves while writing their books.

The will provided that no established author or anyone writing on political subjects should receive and benefit from the fund. Those writing substantial Hungarian literature are to be considered first.

New Castle Man Leaves Hospital

BUTLER, Pa., April 8.—Willis H. Wilson, aged 46, of 504 South Pine street, New Castle, who suffered muscular injuries to his leg Tuesday night when he fell on the sidewalk in front of the Willys-Knight and Overland company's salesroom, was dismissed from the Butler County Memorial hospital yesterday.

It was feared at the time of the accident that he had suffered a fractured leg, but an examination disclosed only a sprain.

Makah's Music Based On Whale

Neah Bay Indians For Centuries Existed On Flesh Of Huge Ocean Monsters

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The whale and the sea in which he dwells furnish the themes for the tribal songs of the Makah Indians of the state of Washington, which Miss Frances Densmore has passed the summer in recording for the bureau of American Ethnology, Smithsonian Institution. The Makah inhabit Neah Bay, near the tip of Cape Flattery, and before the coming of the white man the whale provided their main food supply. It was to the Makah what the Buffalo was to the plains' tribes. Consequently it figures prominently in his songs, legends and ceremonies.

The Makah hold the elk in great honor because his horns provided material for catching the whale. Incidently, they believed animals and rocks were formerly human beings, and one of the dances celebrated on their tribal holiday is the dance of the elks in which the dancers represent the human beings who were the ancestors of the elk.

Miss Densmore found marked traces of heathen customs among the Makah due largely to their comparative isolation from civilization. Two suits of clothes are always buried with a dead man for his use in the future life. On one occasion the mourners had fifty cents left over after buying clothes for the dead man, so they bought him a pipe as well.

Miss Densmore got phonographic records of 115 carefully selected songs which will be studied at Smithsonian and sheet music written from the results obtained. In addition, Miss Densmore collected many archaeological specimens of plants with descriptions of their use for medicinal purposes. One old woman of the tribe gave her entire outfit of medicines. This old lady remembers when a child seeing the old people wearing garments made of cedar bark fibre.

"Back To Nature" Shunned By Indians

(International News Service)

DES MOINES, Ia., April 8. — Back to nature ideas may be all right in theory, but they are the bunk when actually put into practice, in the opinion of Jesse Joy, Indian student and athlete at Drake University.

Joy, seeking to discover first hand knowledge of the manner in which his forefathers lived, equipped himself with nothing other than a bow and a few arrows, and leaving civilization behind him, went into the heart of the Ozark Mountains, in southern Missouri on a back to nature jaunt.

Joy is now back at his studies and his training for athletic events. And he's a firm believer in the present day mode of living as being better than that of former years. He spent a month in the hills, but it was a month of hardships. He found game scarce and the streams almost without fish. Hunting with a bow and arrow also presented difficulties, as the few animals he saw were hard to hit.

The most trying time, however, was in the evenings when he sat about his camp fire, he said.

"During the days it was not bad to tramp over the hills, but in the evenings I missed my books," Joy said. "I wanted to read and study. I'm afraid I would find it extremely hard to return to the primitive life without books and paper."

Nothing is certain except that it won't happen as the experts predict.

NEW CASTLE MAN GOT RID OF CATARRH QUICK

World's Tonic Stopped Dripping of Mucous from Throat and Discharges from the Nose and Relieved Feeling of Fullness in Head.

Began to Notice the Improvement from the First Day.

"Just want to say I have never used anything that gave as quick results as World's Tonic," said Mr. J. B. King a few days ago. Continuing, he stated that for eight years he had been a constant sufferer from catarrh and in that time had used many kinds of medicine recommended for this disease, but World's Tonic he says, is the only thing that ever did him any real good. From the first few days he began to note improvement. It went right to the spot and by the time he had finished his first bottle, the dripping of the nasty mucus from head to throat that caused him to almost constantly be clearing and spitting and discharges of the nose stopped. The fullness in the head, huskiness of his voice inflamed throat and other distressing symptoms quickly disappeared. However he said, "I expect to use two or three more bottles of World's Tonic to be sure the results are permanent."

Experts on catarrh say that the ravages of this disease in the final stages are almost unbelievable. No matter how slight an attack of catarrh you may suffer from, you should secure help at once, otherwise, serious developments are sure to come in the course of time, and frequently very quickly.

World's Tonic is something catarrh sufferers have long needed. It is a systemic treatment for catarrh and it is made especially to combat this disease. World's Tonic fights catarrh at its source, clearing up the system and has brought astonishing results in an exceedingly short time in countless cases.

New Hollywood In London Will Cost $5,000,000

Famous British Artists And Financiers Found New Film Concern

Is Move To Fight Flow Of U. S. Pictures Into Great Britain

BY CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, April 8.—Backed by such persons famous in British art, literature, and the theatre as John Galsworthy, Arnold Bennett, Sir Hall Caine, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Rafael Sabantini, Sybil Thorndike, Sir Charles Oman, and Frank Brangwyn, a $5,000,000 British organization to found an English Hollywood has been set up here. Work is expected to commence on the organization's first picture before the end of 1927.

To Show The World

The organization has been created partly to "show the world what Britain can accomplish in the matter of moving-picture production," and partly to combat the "influx of American made movies."

A five years' option on the film rights of stories by fourteen of the best-known British authors has been secured by the organization, which will have as its name British Incorporated Pictures.

Modern Studios.

Great modern studios are to be built, it is stated, and contracts have been drawn up for the world rights of the first three productions. Production, like the authors and artists, it is asserted, will be purely British and British producers will be loaned by American organizations on a reciprocal basis.

Affiliated producing companies will be locate in Canada, Australia, South Africa, and India.

Estimate 4,913 Quakes In Japan During Year 1926

TOKIO, April 8.—The year 1926 was a light year for earthquakes in Japan, according to records of the Tokio Central Meteorological Observatory. There were only 4,913 which was 384 fewer than in 1925. Siesmologists are gratified because the records show that the number of earthquakes has been decreasing each year since the great disaster of 1923.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS
BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Is scalloped chicken new to you? I confess I never thought of cooking chicken that way. It would be a good way to finish up the leftovers of the roast or fricasee chicken, would it not? Below is the recipe.

Scalloped Chicken
Rice or Baked Potatoes
Egg and Beet Salad
Orange Pie Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES

Egg and Beet Salad—As a rule salads are nicest when they do not stand very long. Hard boil the eggs for the salad some time before the salad is to be made. Put in beet juice for a time. Take the eggs from the beet juice, slice one in a salad plate, cover it with some pickled beet, a little celery and top all with mayonnaise dressing. For garnish use the tiny, white celery leaves. It may be served on a bed of lettuce or shredded cabbage.

Filled Cookies—Two cups brown sugar, one cup shortening, two eggs, one-half teaspoon soda in one-half cup sweet milk, two teaspoons baking powder, four cups flour. Mix, let stand over night if possible; roll thin. Filling: One cup raisins put through food chopper, one cup water, one cup sugar, two heaping teaspoons cornstarch. Boil filling, let cool. Cut cookies, spread filling on one cookie, cover with another, press edges together. Bake until brown. Ice with powdered sugar. A box of these sent to the girls at college is always appreciated.

Scalloped Chicken — Put in a baking dish a layer of shredded chicken, salt, pepper, then a layer of cracker crumbs; repeat until dish is full. Cover with the broth which has been slightly thickened. Bake until brown in a slow oven. Good, hot or cold.

SUGGESTIONS
Sewing Helps

It is a common occurrence in using a new spool of thread on the sewing machine to have the thread roll down on the spindle holding the spool, causing it to break. This can be avoided by dipping the thread in water for an instant.

Here is another good suggestion. When starting to sew, run up a few stitches, lift up presser foot bring goods back to the starting place and continue on over the few stitches and ahead with the work. If you do this you will never have any trouble with a seam opening up. The same can be applied on the end of a seam.

Capital To Have Aircraft Exhibit

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 8. — Arrangements for an international exhibition of aircraft and accessories in Washington in May have been completed by the department of commerce and representatives of the aeronautical industry.

While no flying contests will mark the event, government and private officials contemplate a mobilization of the industry for the exhibition that will indicate the rapid progress being made by American aeronautics.

Canada has been invited to send representatives to the exhibition. It is probable that other North and South American countries will be represented.

At a gathering of officials and experts here a resolution was adopted requesting the Aeronaucal Chamber of Commerce to recommend the scope and plan for the exhibition and to mobilize the industry so that the contemplated exhibition will assume proportions commensurate with the importance of the event.

A club has been formed in Paraguay to boost the building of automobile roads in that country where most of the highways are so bad that only high-wheeled carts drawn by several oxen can get through.

Pennsylvanians Are Eating State Produced Apples

Decrease Is Shown In Shipments From Outside Keystone State

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 8.—A total of 17 carloads of apples were shipped into 15 large Pennsylvania cities in 1926 in addition to the heavy supplies marketed locally acording to records compiled by the Pennsylvania Bureau of Markets. The 1926 receipts were an increase of 248 cars over 1925 but less than the average since 1920 by 560 cars.

The increase in 1926 carlot receipts occurred before the large Pennsylvania crop began to be marketed in the fall of the year. The last four months of 1926 showed 334 fewer cars unloaded than were used by these cities during the corresponding months in 1925 indicating that Pennsylvania consumers depended to a greater degree on local sources of supply during this period than in 1925. The cities of Altoona, Reading, Lancaster and York which are situated near large apple producing areas showed the heaviest decrease in carlot receipts during the year.

New York was again the chief source of carlot supply to Pennsylvania markets, furnishing 2232 cars, or 36 percent of the total receipts as against 40 percent in 1925. Washington stood second with 1894 cars, increasing from 1538 cars the previous year. Pennsylvania held third place above Virginia by furnishing 567 cars as against 421 from the southern state. Delaware stood next with 374 cars and continued to be the heaviest rail shipper of summer apples to markets in the state.

Public Clocks Stop In Paris

Clocks To Be Operated By Electricity In Future Years

OTHER NEWS NOTES FROM PARIS AREA

By ALICE LANGELIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, April 8.—The fifteen public clocks familiar to visitors in Paris were recently stopped at midnight and will not be working for some weeks. The explanation is that the 40-year contract with the Compressed Air Company has expired and it is intended in the future to work clocks by electricity, which will involve a good deal of digging up of streets in order to lay the necessary wires.

But very few people about the city will be inconvenienced by this stoppage, for they were not always to be depended upon and besides it is the disregard for the minute that makes Paris the Paradise of American pleasure-seekers and the bugbear of business-men. To be ten or fifteen minutes late for an appointment means very little in any Frenchman's life.

A certain American has just been wandering about the city and has found that there are at least two hundred and fifteen timepieces in public places which do not run and there are undoubtedly many more which he did not happen to find.

Some of the clocks have no hands, others have but one. Even many of the watchmakers who have clocks above their windows no longer take the trouble to keep them in order. Perhaps it is to encourage the sale of watches? Then, the few clocks that are running all report various hours of the day. The same American found that the clocks at all the railway stations showed a different hour, as well as the six clocks he passed from the Place St. Michel to the Opera, every one reporting a difference of some minutes.

The villagers of Brive-la Gaillarde (Correze) where the accordion continues to be the most popular instrument for dancing music are preparing to celebrate the centenary of the "poor man's piano." They affirm that a Frenchman, named Buffet, made the first one in 1827, but some authorities on musical instruments do not agree with them, giving the credit to a Viennese by the name of Damian, in 1829.

Sure signs of spring in Paris are the departure of the chestnut roasters on every other corner, as well as the withdrawal of the fantastic charcoal stoves which serve to heat up the outdoor terraces of Parisian cafes. Many persons will miss them, for they do somehow seem to throw out faint slivers of heat on wet days. Americans sitting around them ore often reminded of the corner grocery in the old home town.

The chestnut-roasters say there is no use staying on as soon as the cold days are over for people simply don't eat chestnuts then. This season was a particularly poor one, it seems, for there was little wintry weather. Then too, the newcomer peanut seems to be replacing the old French stand-by in many circles. Even nuts have their day.

Interesting comments are coming out in the French press regarding the English play "Rain" which is being performed at the Theatre de la Madeleine under the French title "Pluie."

The "Temps" think the translators have atempted an almost impossible task, for the comedy, despite their great care, seems very inferior to the story. The figures before the footlights lose personality to the French public.

Le 'Journal des Debats' is of the opinion that the chief attraction of the play for Parisians will be the meritorius interpretation of the role of Sadie Thompson by Madame Jane Marnac. Davidson, on the contrary, gives the effect of a brute and hypocrite whose tyrannical authority and hardened Christianity can do nothing but revolt the public.

An ole' banana peel has just cost the Metropolitan Railway Company of Paris thirty thousand francs. Madame Guelle stepped on it in November, 1923, fell and injured her leg. The company attempted to disavow responsibility on the ground that she had left the car at the Station "Cite" when she slipped, but the court ordered it to pay the damages.

PIANIST MAKES RADIO DEBUT

Among the youthful artists making their radio debuts this season is Miss Leonora Cortez, 20-year-old Philadelphia pianist. After two years' concert work abroad she appeared with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in 1925.

Workers' Numbers Grow In Most All Countries

LONDON, April 8.—Striking changes in the working populations of the world are indicated in a memorandum drawn up by Professor A. L. Bowley as preparatory material for the International Economics Conference of the League of Nations.

Professor Bowley's conclusion is that in the three decades between 1910 to 1921 the working population of the undermentioned countries will have increased in most countries.

The working population of France, it is forshadowed, will have fallen, while Germany will have 15 per cent more workers.

U. S. Exports To China Increase Despite Civil War And Turmoil

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 8—Despite the almost continual civil war or political turmoil in China, during the last few years, exports from the United States to that country in 1926 amounted to $129,490,000, an increase of 12 per cent.

Chinese troubles were reflected, however, in a serious drop in its own exports to United States which fell 10 percent to $190,255,000.

During 1926, according to the commerce department, the United States sold China 300 percent more goods than the average for the five year period following 1910, the years when Chinese trade first began to command attention in the world markets. The 1926 figure is 100 per cent greater than the average for the 1915-1919 period, but less than one-half of one percent more than the average for the 1921-1925 period.

Reason For Decline

"The general trade disruption throughout China in 1926, caused by political and military distrubances arrested the normal development of both exports and imports," the commerce department said.

"The imposition of unusual and heavy transit taxes, sharp fluctuations in currency values and the failure of banks to encourage foreign trade with interior provinces increased the difficulties arising from blocked traffic routes.

"However, low stocks in many of the inland commercial centers stimulated the demand for American goods, while the Chinese traders succeeded in overcoming almost insurmountable difficulties."

Exports from China were no less affected than imports into that country. Domestic products moved slowly from the northern and western provinces. The long continued Canton-Hongkong shipping deadlock which compelled South China products to seek other channels or exist or to be held in warehouses, was settled too late to improve the 1926 trade perceptibly. According to the latest returns, however trans-shipments at Hongkong are actually increasing.

No Trade Feature

Unlike the trade with Japan, no single commodity constituted the outstanding feature of the export trade with China last year. Tobacco products led with a combined value of $32,678,800. Both leaf tobacco and cigarettes registered increases in quanity and value. Raw cotton rose from a value of $6,293,000 to $13,276,000. Petroleum products amounted to $23,841,000.

There was a sharp decline in the exports of both gasoline and kerosene, the latter being sufficiently low to reduce China to second place in the foreign markets for American illuminating oil.

China bought twice the amount of wheat and flour from the United States as in 1925. Incheases were recorded in the purchase of machinery, some timber, canned milk, paper and rubber goods, but dyes, copper and leather fell off.

America's purchases of silk and silk products, valued at $55,707,000 constituted nearly 50 percent of our imports from China. This was a 7 percent loss as compared with 1925. Other principal purchases were furs and goat skins, wood oil, carpet wool and rugs, tin, bristles, tea and cotton.

Alice Rhinelander To Fight Divorce Suit By Her "Kip"

Report Scion Of Wealthy New York Family Seeks Divorce In Reno

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, April 8.—Alice Jones Rhinelander is ready to fight the reported divorce move in Reno by her husband, Leonard Kip Rhinelander, it was said today by a person in whom she has confided her plans.

Kip, it is said, contemplates filing suit in Reno under the new three months' residence law.

"Mrs. Rhinelander will fight a divorce action just as she did the annulment suit," it was said. There was no indication, however, that Mrs. Rhinelander would file a counter suit.

Despite her determination to enter a second court fight, Alice still loves Kip, she said today.

"I can't believe he plans to file the suit," she said. "That can't be true. He wouldn't do that when he knows how much I love him. No matter what the law does it cannot kill my love for Leonard or my belief that he loves me."

Runaway Boys Are In Philadelphia; Parents Notified

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—Lee Williams, 17, and Albert Huggs, 15, both of Durham, N. C., were picked up by police here today when the lads were found shivering in a doorway.

"We had heard of New York, Philadelphia and other big northern cities," the boys told detectives, "so we decided to run away and see the world."

The boys went to New York first, then tiring of the big city obtained "lifts" to this city on their way back to Durham. Police are attempting to get in touch with their parents.

Ford Will Acquire Everett Homestead

(International News Service)

BOSTON, April 8.—A large rambling seventeen-room Colonial house, once the Charleston home of Edward Everett, orator, diplomat, governor and college president will be the latest acquisition by Henry Ford, in his plan to restore many of New England's famous hosteleries to the future benefit of the public.

Negotiations for the purchase of the property by Ford have been under way for some time and before many months it is expected that the house will be established as a historical shrine.

The Everett homestead, situated not too far from the famous Bunker Hill monument has a history that fairly reeks with tales of events and personages important in the development of this nation. It was in this house that Everett and his bride entertained the Marquise Lafayette and Daniel Webster on the day that the first monument on Bunker Hill was dedicated.

Almost every personage of national fame that visited Boston in the days when Everett was the Hub's leading citizen spent at least a few hours there as his guest. It was while living in the house that Everett was elected to Congress. Later he was governor of this state and still later president of Harvard College.

The interior of the building was fully restored to its original construction a few years ago when the then owners spent almost $25,000 for such work.

It is generally understood by those involved in the sale of the property to Mr. Ford that the latter intends to establish the house as a shrine to be visited by the thousands who yearly come to Bunker Hill.

"Miss Germany" For Galveston Contest Is Unbobbed Blonde

(International News Service)

BERLIN, April 8.—"Miss Germany" has been selected and she will probably represent Germany at the International beauty contest scheduled at Galveston this year.

Miss Germany, with her common name of Hildegard Kwandt, is twenty-one years old, blonde and not bobbed. She was born near Koenigsberg in East Prussia and is an orphan. "Hilde" is a fervent dancer, but she hardly smokes and hates bobbed hair. "I'll never have my hair bobbed, if I can help it," she said to interviewers. "Of course, if my finance wants it, I'll probably do it, but I don't think he will," she added with a smile.

Hildegard Kwandt was unknown until a committee of Berlin artists and film actors arranged a beauty contest recently. "I hesitated for quite a while before I decided to go," said Hilde in answer to questions how she liked her new title.

Hilde is a good Hausfrau. She knows how to cook and do all sorts of home work German women are used to do. She has no profession, but has found a home with relatives. "I have no particular ambitions, as far as my selection is concerned. The only ambition I have at present is to make my future husband happy at home. We hope to marry in summer.

Boy Scout News

Troop 5

The Elk's Troop 5 held its regular weekly meeting at the Elk's club Wednesday evening with a large number of scouts present. Judge S. Plummer Emery was present and spoke to the boys. He also presented the troop charter and certificates. Aside from the business meeting, several scout games were played.

Last Saturday many of the boys of this troop planted trees and will also do this good work again this Saturday. The boys taking part in the planting are as follows: Harry Brown, Russel Young, Robert Griffith, Jack Griffith, Harry Jones, Hugh Erwin, Robert Rogers and Harry Hoon. Other boys of this troop desiring to help in this work will please notify the scoutmaster.

The next meeting of this troop will be held Wednesday evening, April 13, at 7:30 o'clock. All boys are urged to be present as this is to be a very important meeting of the troop.

Troop 13

Lions Troop 13 held its regular meeting last night at the Scotland Lane school. Scoutmaster Peter Grittie and Assistant Scoutmaster Jack Grittie were in charge.

Andrew Eve passed his tenderfoot tests and received his tenderfoot badge. Several boys of this troop will plant trees at the Scout Camp Saturday. The boys will meet and leave from the end of the West Side car line at 8:30 a. m. A. C. McCoy has kindly offered to furnish machines to take the troop to camp and return them.

The Archery patrol will meet with Assistant Scoutmaster Jack Grittie, Friday evening, April 8, at seven o'clock.

Scouts To Plant Trees

Saturday, April 9, boys of Rotary Troop 1, First Christian church Troop 15, Lions Troop 13 and Epworth Troop 10 will plant 2,000 trees at the Sconut camp on the Steiner property. A lunch will be served the boys.

Last Saturday, scouts under the direction of their Scoutmaster, Ralph F. Davis began planting 8,000 trees on the Gilfillan property on the Pulaski road, near the Shenango river. The boys will again go to this place tomorrow to finish the work.

Every one realizes the need of keeping our forests thriving but for some time no action has been taken to do this work. The Boy Scouts, ever ready to do a good turn, each year do this necessary work. Their labor is appreciated and will continue.

Measurements Taken At Reducing Classes

Marked Loss In Weight Noted; And Decease In Measurements

At the eighth lesson of the present semester, measurements were taken in the Y. W. C. A. reducing classes. Some very fine decreases were made both in weight and in size. Following are figures showing the greatest and also the average losses made in seven weeks.

Total loss in weight—205¾ pounds.

Greatest individual loss in pounds—16 pounds.

Average individual loss in pounds—7 pounds.

Greatest chest decrease—3½ inches.

Greatest waist decrease—4 inches.

Greatest hip decrease—3½ inches.

Greatest calf decrease—1 inch.

The above figures present very good results from the classes however they do not show all the resultant effects of this type of work. Some of the results are determined by the tape measure and by the scales while others are measured from standard viewpoints of health. And these latter, are the standards that really count when the vital test is taken.

How the women are limbered up! How pliant their muscles become! How springy their step! And after all these are the results we want.

We don't want to get old, stiff and rheumatic. And absolutely the best preventive remedy is proper care of the body through intelligent exercise and diet.

Get ready to join the "Y. W." next October.

Rainbow Terrace Has Been Improved

Rainbow Terrace, dance pavilion at Cascade Park, has been improved during the winter months, ticket boxes having been built in new locations and lattice work having been added to the building.

Last night the first dance of the open air season was held and the terrace was crowded. Dancing will be in vogue every Thursday and Saturday night until May 21, when the regular season is inaugurated.

Cascade Park Lake Drained

Cascade Lake, at Cascade Park, has been drained, according to Carl Shaner, manager. The state granted permission to drain the lake and the water was let out Tuesday. Inasmuch as townspeople did not know the lake was to be drained, there were no large catches of fish reported.

The very fact that he feels an urge to justify himself means that it can't be done.

150,000 Persons Ill In Bed Every Day In New York

Half Million More Are Unfit For Work Each Day In City

Other News Notes Of Great Metropolis As Seen By News Man

By ARTHUR WIMER
New York Correspondent New Castle News

NEW YORK, April 8.—According to the latest report of the committee on dispensary development of the United hospital fund, 150,000 persons are ill in bed every day in New York City. The report further states that an additional 500,000 of New York's 6,000,000 have some illness each day which makes them unfit for their usual occupation and calls for medical care.

A Park avenue jeweler recently purchased from the Duke of Westminster the Nassak diamond, one of the most famous precious stones in the world. It had been held by the Westminster family since 1831.

The jewel was first carried to England from India by Warren Hastings and is believed to have come from the eye of an idol in a temple at Nassak, on the upper Godavery. It was taken from Prince of Pashawar, who confiscated it from the temple to sell in order to raise funds with which to combat England.

The value of the stone has been estimated as being $400,000.

The expenses of students at Columbia University average $1,350 a year, according to a report of Nicholas McDowell Knight, secretary of the appointments, made public at a meeting of the trustees of the institution.

The kind of jazz that tends to create indecent dancing will be eliminated from New York in the very near future if the plans of the National Association of Orchestra Directors materialize. The association has named a committee composed of Julian T. Abeles, so-called czar of jazz; Roger Wolfe Kahn, Ben Bernie, George Olsen and Vincent Lopez, to purify jazz dance music in Manhattan.

The committee will visit hotels, night clubs and dance halls to observe and to instruct orchestra leaders as to the correct rendition of music.

When a woman started to powder her face recently in the New Jersey avenue court in Brooklyn while a case was being heard by Magistrate Mortimer S. Brown, the magistrate banged his gavel and delivered an ultimatum against powder puffs in the courtroom.

"This court is no beauty parlor", the magistrate roared, glaring at the woman, who was seated in the front row among the spectators. "I think you women should dress before you leave your homes. It's disgraceful the way you doll up in public. Theaters, restaurants, churches and cigar stores may tolerate the practice, but I won't. The next woman I find using a powder puff in this court I'll fine ten dollars. Proceed with the case."

Among the historic furniture to be auctioned this week in New York City is a grey deer hide covered trunk that was formerly the property of George Washington. On the side of the trunk are the initials "G. W." in brass nails. The trunk is one of the three that Washington owned at the time of his death.

Austrian Experts To Teach Chileans Social Insurance

(International News Service)

VIENNA, April 8.—At the invitation of the Chilean government two social insurance experts, Dr. Karl Mumelter and Hofrat Hans Vol Voglsang, leave here shortly to introduce the Austrian social assurance schemes in Chile. The Chilean government recently passed national laws providing for social insurance against old age, sickness, unemployment, etc., all of which have been in operation in Austria since the revolution of 1918.

The Austrian insurance schemes provide generally for the working men in case of sickness, old age and unemployment from funds handled by the government but mostly collected from the workers. The funds are paid directly by the workers to the government, and everyone contributing has the right to call upon the government in case of need.

The weekly amount contributed by each worker is insignificant. To this the municipal governments and rural councils as well as the national government add about thirty percent. The contributions are more or less stationary, all surplus being invested for future use. Last year the Austrian government collected about sixteen million dollars from workers to be applied to the unemployment insurance schemes and paid out twenty-two millions in doles.

Dr. Mumelter and Hofrat Voglsang have been directors of the government insurances schemes for several years. They will remain in Chile about four months.

Farm Workers Hurt Fox Hunts

LONDON, April 8.—Fox hunting in England, which dates back many centuries, is threatened by the activity of farm laborers who have been carrying on an illicit business in reynard's skin.

The hide, worth more than a million pounds sterling to the fox himself while it stays upon his back is worth but 12 to 13 shillings when peeled off its original owner and is passed on to the London furriers.

At a farmers' meeting here the Duke of Beaufort, whose estate covers 52,000 acres, discussed the possibilities of the fox becoming extinct if farm hands were allowed to shoot the quarry which takes such a leading part in the hunting parties of the aristocracy.

The Duke complained because of the increasing value of fox skins on the market, saying the practice had already proved a danger to the sport. He urged the farmers' cooperation to discourage fox shooting so that fox hunting with hounds and horses would continue to thrive.

children must get certain important food-values

When children's progress is interrupted, or when nervous troubles begin in small ways to be noticeable—often a failure in nourishment is the unguessed cause.

73 child health specialists say that child meals, during the important period of rapid development, often do not include an adequate amount of the growth foods.

That is why Quick Mother's Oats has such strong scientific recommendation.

For of the growth-material called protein, one-fourth of a child's daily requirement is met by a cup of Quick Mother's Oats with a cup of milk.

And vitamins, minerals and the tender bran of the oat are also liberally provided. * * *

Quick Mother's Oats is a natural whole-grain food. Made from the cream of the oat crop by careful millers, its full flavor and smooth texture have been commented on and sought for, for many, many years.

We have never experienced a miracle similar to the above in our dental practice, but we have known of many patients gaining in health rapidly after having decayed or ulcerated teeth extracted.

There are hundreds of persons in this city and vicinity who are suffering and are in poor health, who could regain health by permitting us to care for their teeth.

Suggestions

Choose for business wear a sturdy twist weave with the color harmony of a summer sunset, a cassimere of granite blue, fawn, or mahogany brown, or, as a concession to quiet taste, the dignity of a pencil stripe, or soft gray flannel.

You'll want a suit of blue, as well. Always in good form, the blue suit provides a change for business wear, keeps you "dressed up" for the evening in town, and, in fact, fits into the spirit of every occasion which falls short of formal dress requirements.

YOU will find in the Richman Store, a truly remarkable showing of new woolens, and fashionably correct models, ready for the selection of your spring suit and topcoat—no need here to limit your choice of weave, color or style.

Every authoritative model is represented, for men of every size, proportion and posture. There are woolens to please the most fastidious—rich colorings and pronounced patterns adapted to the "live-wire" personalities of young men; quiet gray, blue, tan and brown shades for the mature professional or business man.

Music Counter Girls Must Know All Songs Even If Only Whistled

"Some Other Bird Whistled a Tune."

You all remember that song hit of last year, don't you? Everyone sang it, played it, and whistled it, and now that we've worn it out let's give it to the girl behind the music counter for her own private use. Surely if anyone deserves a particular right to it she does.

Day in and day out she is approached with the same thing. "I heard a clever song last night. I don't know the name of it, nor the words, but it goes something like this———", and he (it is a he, usually—the women are too self-conscious to whistle or hum) proceeds to whistle what he imagines to be the tune. Then the girl must guess carefully, so she won't have to guess too long and thus give the impression she thinks the man can't whistle as well as he thinks he can. Often she has heard the same attempt before and knows immediately what he wants, and he, foolishly thinks that it was his whistling that led her to so quick a decision. When she brings out "Somebody Else" he is instantly pleased and with that encouragement he whistles another which she quickly guesses to be "Aint She Sweet?" By that time a dozen other demands come to her attention and she must go to the next.

A woman this time. Perhaps it will be a relief from the gentleman before. But no, she doesn't know the name of the piece either and will not hum or whistle it. Indignantly she waits while the girl plays several of the latest numbers and if the girl is lucky within the course of the first ten or so she happens upon the one the woman wanted. Otherwise she plays on till both she and the customer are disgusted, then the woman leaves and she goes to the next in line.

Another woman! "Is there a song named 'What Are You Doing Tony?' Or 'Where Are You Going John?'" My brother-in-law heard it on his radio and told me about it." Before the woman has a chance to continue tell about her brother-in-law and all his possessions including the radio the girl has broken into the first triumphant chords of "Where Do You Worka John?" In but a moment the woman is holding the coveted package and smiling sweetly at the girl who scarcely seeing the look of gratitute goes into the next.

There is the usual person who wants a piece he knows was never written, just so he can listen to some of the others and not have to buy anything. Then there is the young high school boy who wants something "hot." He is easily pleased—just tell him that song with all the crashes and no music is the very latest and it is sold.

A variety of others who are easily dealt with flock about the counter but always through it all is the one who whistles and the girl must use all her intuition and tact in satisfying him. When things are quiet she may turn to another salesgirl and say "Some other bird just whistled—" but before she gets further there will be another.

Hoover Has Honor Of Inaugurating Television Phone

Hoover Talks With New York With Telephone President Can Be Seen Plainly

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, April 8.—Sixty men sat in a room here and watched the facial expression of Secretary Herbert Hoover as he talked over long distance telephone from Washington to President Walter S. Gifford of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, who was at the New York end of the wire.

It was the first formal demonstration of television—"seeing over the telephone".

Mr. Hoover could be seen and heard, distinctly, and at the same time.

An equally marvelous demonstration of "seeing over the radio" was then given. The audience saw the room in which they were sitting connected with the telephone company's station, 3XN, located at Whippany, N. J., and within a few seconds were seeing and hearing at the same time a radio performance transmitted by television from Whippany.

Government Moves To Smash Potash Trust, Announce

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The federal government moved today to smash the so-called international potash trust.

Attorney General Sargent announced the filing of an injunction suit in the New York federal court against a group of German and French producers of potash, charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and anti-competition provisions of the Wilson tariff act.

The petition said that individual representatives of the German and French producers are in New York arranging with American distributing agencies to project a monopoly of potash, "built up overseas", into the United States.

Housework often causes over-strain

"PAIN WAS LIKE A KNIFE STAB"

Once helpless from lame back, now does all her own work

Made practically helpless by a strained back, an active young housewife tried everything she could think of, and at last found quick and complete relief from a simple, old-fashioned remedy.

"The pain in my back was like a knife stab," she writes, "and it left me helpless. Sloan's Liniment was given to me to ease the pain, and I am now able to do all my own work."

Sloan's gets results because it doesn't just deaden the pain. It stirs up the body's own forces to get rid of the cause.

Just pat it on lightly without rubbing, and at once you feel a warm, comforting glow, as the healing blood is sent coursing through the sick tissues—stiff, contracted muscles relax, the pain stops, and soon normal conditions are restored.

Get a bottle today. So clean and easy to use. All druggists—35 cents.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—Two girls robbed in a roadhouse outside of Lancaster the night Police Lieutenant Elwood Gainor was found murdered five miles north of Chester, two weeks ago, are expected to furnish clues which will lead to the identity of the slayers. The girls are alleged to have been robbed by two men.

Lancaster detectives brought the girls to the city for questioning.

Start Corn Borer Battle In Illinois

Blazing Oil Being Used To Eliminate Pest In State

(International News Service)
KANAKEE, Ill., April 8.—A bombardment of blazing oil has been launched in this county, the only locality in the state of Illinois where a specimen of the European corn borer, costly crop pest, has been found. The attack is expected to wipe out completely all threats of the borer to cause trouble in this section of the state.

The Frank Love farm, near here, is the scene of the battle.

Oil tanks, with air compressors mounted near the driver's seat force the oil at a pressure of about 350 pounds per square inch through long lines of rubber hose to the burners. The burners are light carts, made of gas pipe, through which the oil coming through the hose is forced. The rear end of the burner frame, about 20 feet across, is studded with jets like burners on a gas stove. From these jets, seething flames shoot downward, applying an intense heat to the corn stubble or whatever vegetation exists.

No living organism can withstand this flame, it is claimed.

Send Mother To Insane Asylum

(International News Service)
FRACKVILLE, Pa., April 8. — Mrs. Mary Heine, of this borough, who killed her three-year-old boy at their home several weeks ago was committed to the Schuylkill county hospital for the insane at Schuylkill Haven. In ordering the woman removed to the hospital, the court confirmed the report of a lunacy board which declared Mrs. Heine insane.

BARBER WEDS GIRL WHO SLASHED HIM; MOTHER HOLDS BABY

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 8.—His throat cut by Mary May, 18, Italian girl from Oliver, because he refused to marry her after admitting the parternity of her child, police say, James Michele, 26, local barber, was discharged from the Uniontown Hospital yesterday afternoon and immediately married in the office of the clerk of courts, in the presence of the bride's mother and "Tommy" Poletz, a friend of the family.

Mrs. May, mother of the girl, held the baby during the ceremony. The groom still shows the effects of the throat slash.

Ask U. S. Attorney General If You Want To Know Nothing

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

WASHINGTON, April 8. — Being now in his third year as attorney general of the United States, John Garibaldi Sargent's beginning to hear rumors of a "crime wave."

He's considering a call to experts on the subject—police chiefs, penitentiary wardens, prosecutors, welfare workers, sociologists and such—to meet in Washington and discuss means of getting folks to be good.

"Jawn," as President Coolidge calls him, will sift the rumors thoroughly, however, before he acts. J. G. Sargent isn't the attorney general to go off half cock.

If he decides there's really an unjustifiable amount of crime, then he'll see what can be done about it, but he won't take anybody's unsupported word for it that there's a "wave."

Before he leaps, "Jawn" examines the place he's due to land on. He examines it with a microscope. Having done so, he generally elects not to leap.

John G.'S the hardest man in the cabinet to extract any information from. He's the hardest man in Washington. He probably is the hardest man in the United States. It isn't impossible that he's the hardest man in the world.

The question is:

Won't he tell anybody anything because he doesn't want to, or because he doesn't know?

It isn't mere newspaper men that he baffles. Hard boiled congressional investigating committees yank him up before 'em, to put questions to him that they've a right to ask.

They never learn a thing from him. He doesn't dodge. He simply hides behind a stone wall of ignorance—that is, ignorance of anything his questioners want to find out. He'll tell fish stories all right.

Sargent's been interrogated as to the "increase in crime" many's the time and often in the last two years.

He hadn't heard of any—until just now.

Then how did it happen that prisoners were being stowed two in a bunk at Leavenworth and Atlanta?

What, that so? How "intrusting!"

What about all this juvenile delinquency?

Tut, tut! You don't say! How sad! None of his young friends have gone wrong.

Did he think prohibition had anything to do with it?

Oh, no. 'Cause he didn't see any saloons.

But Mrs. Mary Walker Willebrandt says—

Ah-h-h! That reminds him. Did you ever hear that story about the two French Canadians, Alphonse and Pierre? Well, they went fishing, etc., etc., no end.

If "Jawn" simply puts this on, he does it to absolute perfection.

He give the impression of an attorney general who doesn't know his way in through the front door of the Justice Department building and upstairs and how to sit down at his desk without a skilled assistant to guide him — and he won't let his skilled assistant talk.

It makes him appear like a dub, but it makes him as impervious as a burglar proof safe, too.

He's a nice old man, as polite and kindly in his manner as anybody could ask, but either he's the most unsophisticated attorney general who ever held office in Washington or he's the slyest one who ever measured 6 feet 6 in his socks.

SLEEP NO LONGER INTERRUPTED EXCLAIMS COAL CO. YARDMASTER

63 Year Old Lancaster Man Tells How Famous Mexican Sap Put Him Back On His Feet—Gains 30 Pounds

NO MORE DISTURBED SLEEP

Lancaster, Pa.—Looking as hale and hearty as a man 20 years younger, Mr. F. C. Ruof, well known yardmaster at the Houser & Coho Coal Co., residing at 528 E. Orange St., this city, today told of his amazing relief from chronic kidney inflammation.

"For years my kidneys had been bothering me—first just a little, then they got worse and worse. I didn't know what it meant to enjoy a night's sleep, because my bladder would wake me several times. As a result I was so tired in the morning as I was at night. I lost weight. My legs and feet were swollen, and finally I had to give up my job; nothing gave me any relief. Then I heard about Matamel, and I guess you can tell what it has done for me just by how I look.

"I've put on 30 lbs.—getting up nights is a thing of the past. My weariness has gone, I'm eating better, and on the job like the young fellows. I can't say too much for that wonderful Matamel and will verify my story to anyone calling upon me".

In commenting on this case, a well known doctor says: "If you are troubled with chronic kidney and bladder weakness—in fairness to yourself don't drug yourself with medicines that may do more harm than permanent good. Matamel is a natural sap from the Mexican Maguey plant—not a patent medicine. I have had thousands of cases brought to my attention where it has benefitted sufferers after all else had failed".

Reading of Matamel won't give you its results. You must use it. Call at once for trial can of Matamel at:

Will Try To Kill Harmful Insects By Strong Lights

GENEVA, N. Y., April 8.—The candle's flickering flame, heralded for generations in song and story as a fatal lure for the moth, will be used, magnified a thousand-fold by man's genius, in an experiment here this summer to determine if electric lights will attract and destroy insect pests harmful to vegetation.

The grounds of the New York state agricultural experiment station will be brilliantly illuminated with specially designed electric light traps to lure to destruction the female codling moth before she has opportunity to deposit her damaging eggs in the calyx of the apple tree's pink blossoms. Similar efforts will be made to entrap the leaf roller, the cherry maggot in its moth form, the rose aphis and the cut and cabbage worms in winged forms.

Voluminous and detailed data will be kept to determine if electric lights may be employed to control or exterminate insect pests more economically and efficiently than is possible with present measures. Scientists of the station have expressed the belief that successes achieved in the experiment this year may become factors of great economic value before another season passes.

Lights that project rays almost invisible to the human eye, but glaringly attractive to winged insects, and electric lights of all intensities set at various angles to attract insects flying at high altitudes, will be installed on the experiment station grounds, particularly in the orchard, under present plans.

Electrical engineers, entomologists, pathologists and horticulturalists thruout the state are either aiding in promoting or are interested in the experiment, characterized as one of the most important in its field of modern times.

The work will be carried on at the expense of electrical companies under the direction of a committee composed of Dr. R. W. Thatcher, director, and Dr. U. P. Hedrick, horticulturist of the experiment station, and H. O. Palmer of the Empire Gas and Electric Company of Geneva. Lights and insect traps are now being prepared for installation some time in April and are to be fed current without cost from high tension wires passing the station. It is expected the experiment will be continued until September.

For the first time in 20 years a woman has been given permission to enroll in the civil engineering department of the University of Texas.

Judge Lindsey's Marriage Views Cited By Woman Tried In His Court

(International News Service)

DENVER, April 8.—The absence of Judge Ben B. Lindsey from his juvenile court bench prevented him from ruling on an actual case of companionate marriage, which he has been advocating on a speaking tour.

A visiting jurist, Judge E. J. Ingram of Boulder sentenced Frank Cordilla, 29, to serve 20 days in the county jail, and released his companionate "wife", Mrs. Elsie Patterson, 37, on condition that she would not resume relations with Cordilla on his release.

The companionate pair, who admitted to juvenile court officials that they justified their illegal wedlock on the theory of companionate marriage advocated by Judge Lindsey, were arrested on charges of contributing to the delinquency of Mrs. Patterson's children.

A strange tale of thwarted romance and determined defiance of convention in an effort to restore happiness to a blasted life was related to the court by Mrs. Patterson.

Pertinent Question.

"Why shouldn't I leave a husband who was unable to provide for his children, and live with a man who could, and who was a better father to them than their own?" she asked, during her examination.

Further questioning revealed that Mrs. Patterson was never married to S. E. Patterson, her first husband, but that under Colorado law, their common law marriage became legal after three years.

When she was only 13 years old, Patterson and she ran away from her parents in St. Louis, and started housekeeping in Kiowa, Colo. She told of a harrowing struggle for existence with Patterson, living and rearing their children in a squalid dugout, clothing them in gunny sacks and rags. Mrs. Patterson had to work in the fields to keep the family from starvation.

Finally she gave it up, and five years ago brought her daughter Eleanor to Denver, where she went to work in a laundry.

Several months later, Johnny, youngest of her six children, was born.

Struggling to keep her family together by laundry employment, Mrs. Patterson began to seek pleasure for herself, something she had not known while living with Patterson.

At a dance she met young Cordilla, and they became friends. He asked her to marry him, but Patterson had never secured a divorce. Two years ago, they decided to try companionate marriage, and went to housekeeping together.

Cordilla, she says, has been kind to her children, has supported them and made life less a burden to her. Why should the court, whose own judge advocates companionate marriages, interfere with their life, she demanded.

2,500,000 Visit Hall For Mikado's Funeral

(International News Service)

TOKIO, April 8.—Approximately 2,500,000 persons visited the hall in Shinjuku Imperial Gardens, Tokio where the funeral ceremonies for the late Emperor Taisho were held during the month that the pavilion was thrown open to the public. After the period of public inspection ended the buildings used in the Imperial funeral services were donated to the city of Tokio.

More than 1,000,000 persons it is estimated, visited the Imperial mausoleum at Alaska during the period the burial place of the late Emperor was open to public inspection. The work of erecting a permanent mausoleum to replace the temporary tomb and service halls hurriedly constructed after the death of the Emperor is now under way.

AFTER YEAR, FINDER OF $30,000 NECKLACE GETS IT "FOR KEEPS"

NEW YORK, April 8.—After a delay of about a year, Adelaide Forts, Harlem working girl, recovered, through legal action, the necklace valued at $30,000 which she had picked up near her home and had taken trustfully to a pawnbroker, asking him if it were worth $5. The pawnbroker, when he saw its real value, notified police.

They took the necklace, according to custom. After remaining in the unclaimed bureau of the department for six months it was demanded by the finder. Legal technicalities delayed its return until Miss Forts engaged counsel. The necklace then was turned over on a writ of replevin.

Announce Mine Will Be Operated Non-Union Basis

Jones' And Laughlin Company Announces Policy For Mine Operation

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, April 8.—Mines of the Vesta Coal company, which supplies the Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation with bituminous coal, will be operated with non-union miners henceforth.

Joseph Edwards, general superintendent, in making this announcement, estimated that 3,000 would be affected. That number normally is employed in the Vesta mines.

Earlier in the bituminous suspension, the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal corporation, one of the largest in Western Pennsylvania, announced it would operate with non-union miners after standing by the union for years.

Production costs of steel made a change in policy at the mines necessary, Edwards declared. He said other steel companies were producing steel at less expense than the Jones and Laughlin corporation because they used coal mined by non-union men.

Union officials were silent on this latest development in the bituminous suspension.

TRAINED CANARY TRIES FREEDOM, BUT RETURNS

ATLANTIC CITY, April 8.—Life in the "wide open spaces" apparently had little appeal for "Dick" a trained canary belonging to Mrs. Ethel Henderson.

Dick was listed as a. w. o. l. this morning when Mrs. Henderson turned his cage after cleaning a trough for his bath. He had flitted out the open door and through a window. She looked out and saw him perched on a wire fraternizing with some ordinary sparrows. Mrs. Henderson whistled and called but Dick seemed to like his new fredom and paid no attention.

She placed the cage with the door open on a table near the window and went about her household duties. Four hours later she looked around when she heard a cherry chirp. Dick was back inside the cage swinging away on a perch.

SENATE FAVORS SALARY RAISER

Votes Favorably On Measure Increasing Legislator's Salaries

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 8. — The senate on Thursday acted promptly on the Howe Bill which increases the salary of members of the legislature from $2,500 to $3,000. The bill also provides a larger increase than is apparent. Instead of getting ten cents a mile for a round trip from their respective homes the Howe Bill would permit five cents a mile for one jaunt each way of the twenty or more weeks the legislature is in session.

The bill passed the house Wednesday by a vote of 112 to 61 after a number of representatives had hurried to the rostrum to have their votes changed.

It was sent to the senate and referred to the appropriations committee. After it has been advanced on the calendar it will be sent back to committee "for discussion." A session of the committee was not possible Thursday because of the few members here.

WRECK TRAIN TO SAVE GIRL

Emergency Stop Sends Several Cars Off Of Track

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 8.—Terror-stricken, an 18-year-old girl clung between the cars of a speeding freight train until trainmen, advised of the girl's predicament brought the train to a sudden halt near here, causing the train to buckle and sending several cars off the track, it was learned here today.

The girl, whose name was not learned, was picking coal from the tracks at Ligonier Junction, near Latrobe, and had climbed between two cars when the train started, it is believed. As the train picked up speed she was afraid to jump, and clung desperately to a hand rail with one hand, the other clutching her basket of coal.

Trainmen at a signal tower west of Latrobe saw the girl and gave the engineer an emergency stop signal. So quickly did he bring the train to a stop that it buckled, sending several cars off the track only a few minutes before a passenger train was due.

While trainmen frantically set signals to stop the fast approaching passenger train, the girl left her dangerous perch and strolled calmly down the tracks toward home with her basket of coal.

Several arrests have recently been made in the Sonora border city and police officials say that they have information that will soon lead them to the ring headquarters from whence thousands of 'marajuana' cigarettes are turned out daily.

New Era For Prohibition Seen In Naming Of Haynes

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Only a rash prophet would try to foretell how Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's selection of Roy A. Haynes as "acting" prohibition commissioner will pan out.

The situation's too full of "ifs" and "buts".

However, it can be analyzed.

To analyze it, we must consider prohibition in its three stages, thus far.

The first stage was the period immediately following its adoption, when everything was all jumbled up—when enforcement wasn't organized, when bootlegging wasn't organized, and considerable legal liquor was yet available, and the public had hardly made up its mind where it was "at".

The second stage was the period, beginning early in the Harding administration, of Haynes' control of the dry unit.

The third stage was the Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews' period.

We're just about to enter on the fourth stage.

The history of the first stage may be wiped off the slate. It was too chaotic to mean much.

Then Haynes took charge, as prohibition commissioner. Nominally he was under Commissioner of Internal Revenue David H. Blair's orders, and Blair, in turn, was answerable to Secretary Mellon, but in reality Haynes had things pretty much his own way.

Now, with Haynes, prohibition enforcement not only was a matter of business, but a labor of love.

He was and is a dyed-in-the-wool prohibitionist himself.

Undoubtedly he did his best, but it doesn't appear to have been good enough, for the time came when his superiors decided a new man and a new plan were necessary.

Accordingly Gen. Andrews came in, but as assistant secretary of the treasury, with prohibition enforcement as the main part of his job.

Haynes kept his title and salary but lost nearly all his authority.

Unquestionably Andrews was as determined to enforce the law as Haynes had been, but he wasn't personally a prohibitionist.

They tell a story about one of our most arid senators whose auto was stopped one night by a pair of dry sleuths and searched for liquor.

"Go ahead, boys," said the senator. "I'm a prohibitionist myself."

"Heck!" replied one of the twain. "We ain't prohibitionists. We're just enforcement agents.

Thats' the kind of a dry czar General Andrews has been.

Nevertheless, the general is an able executive.

His heart may not have been in his work, as Haynes' was, but his head was in it.

He improved the dry organization materially, dragged the coast guard into it and got congress to put it on a civil service basis. All indications are that it's on a more efficient footing than ever it was before.

But it hasn't dried the country up.

All this time Wayne B. Wheeler, who may be accepted as pretty fairly representative of the bulk of the drys, has been hinting that Gen. Andrews' weakness was his lack of faith.

As the embodiment of efficiency himself, it may be taken for granted that he appreciated the beauties of the general's enforcement machine—only it didn't work very well. Dr. Wheeler seems to have believed that it would, with a real prohibitionist in charge.

So now back comes Haynes again—no longer a dummy commissioner, but a real "acting" one.

First, a god prohibitionist but no enforcement machine. Then, a good machine but no prohibitionist. At last Wheeler has succeeded in combining the two.

In olden times it was a general belief that any child born in the last seven days of April would "die a wicked death". Among the superstitious the 16th and the 21st were believed to be the unlucky days of April.

England To Study Voronoff Method

(International News Service)

LONDON, April 8.—The British Government is sending to Algeria a delegation of experts to study, on the spot, the results obtained by Dr. Voronoff, the famous surgeon, in his experiments, to improve the present breeds of horses, sheep and cattle.

Dr. Voronoff has the co-operation of the French Colonial Veterinary Force, and the claims made in his behalf are such that the British Government and British Dominions cannot afford to ignore.

His chief claim is that his grafting process not only prolongs the active life of the animal treated, but that their progeny are notably superior. In the case of sheep, for instance, weight and wool production at certain ages are declared to be much higher.

The British Delegation will be composed of the most celebrated agriculturists and veterinary experts in the country, headed by Sir Daniel Hall, permanent head of the Ministry of Agriculture.

Money may not mean everything, but almost everything means money.

Ice Continues To Decrease In All Lakes

Straits Of Mackinac Will Soon Be Open, Report

BUFFALO, April 8.—According to the fourth official ice bulletin, issued by the U. S. department of agriculture, the only ice in Lake Erie is at the extreme easterly end between Dunkirk and Buffalo. The field off Buffalo is about six inches thick and extends beyond vision with many open lanes of water showing. Experts here say that in their opinion, boast could start out of Buffalo now and make any Ohio port without difficulty. However, there is no hurry on the part of the vessel owners to get started, and it is doubtful if any vessels will leave before insurance goes into effect at midnight April 15, except a few that might go to Ohio to load soft coal.

The report states that ice has been decreasing and softening in all the lakes. It is about 15 inches thick in Duluth-Superior harbor with the field in the lake extending about six miles along the north shore and eight miles along the south shore, but it is breaking up along both shores. There is some ice off Keweenaw Point moving with the winds, but no ice at Marquette, and only small fields off Whitefish Point. Whitefish Bay is still solid, but is softening at the lower end.

In Lake Michigan ice continues to soften the break. At the Straits of Mackinac the ice is unbroken, but there is open water from the island westward to McGulpin's Point. It looks now as if the straits will open within a week. In Georgian Bay the ice is 12 inches thick, but there are no fields reported in Lake Huron. At Goderich the ice drifts in and out with the wind. There is no ice to speak of on Lake Saint Clair or Ontario, and the Saint Lawrence river is open. There is much less ice on all the lakes than at this time a year ago.

Is London Too Large? Asks English Writer

Greater Than New York, He Says, Giving U. S. City Six Million Population

According to the last census, the population of London is just under 7,500,000, who live upon an area of 443,424 acres. It is, of course, by far the largest city in the world, though New York, with its 6,000,000, is rapidly approaching it. London is also the most densely populated of the great cities of the west for it has 10,800 people to the square mile, says London Answers.

The last census showed that all the large English cities were growing very fast. In ten years Birmingham had added 79,000 to its population, Liverpool 50,000 and Sheffield 30,000.

Big cities are magnets drawing people from the country, and an unpleasant fact disclosed by the census of 1921 was that there were 97,000 fewer workers on the land than in 1911, and that in the past 40 years the area under wheat had fallen 1,800,000 acres.

These things are bad, but there are others worse. A traffic expert tells us that if London grows much larger it will be flatly impossible for its people to get to and from their business. Already the time consumed in getting to and from work averages an hour and a quarter for each worker. An hour which is worse than wasted, for in many cases it means running and fighting to get into tram, train or bus, and then standing during the whole journey.

Another expert says that within the next ten years motor traffic will be beyond the capacity of the streets to carry.

There are only two alternatives. One is to pull down London and rebuild it with streets two or three times as wide as at present; the other to legislate against fresh inhabitants. And both seem equally impossible.

Lots of people think the world owes them five or six livings.

A treat from childhood days!

Over Half Million Get Hunter's License In Keystone State

By GEORGE H. MANNING
(Washington Correspondent of the News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 8.—Pennsylvania topped all other states in revenue obtained through the issuance of hunting licenses last season.

Sportsmen in the Keystone State paid into the State treasury a sum aggregating $656,547.25 for permits to hunt various kinds of game. In the number of licenses issued, Pennsylvania also led all other states. Data obtained by the Department of Agriculture from the State Treasurer's office show that 525,045 persons secured licenses to go afield last season. Of these 521,855 were residents of the state and 3,190 were non-residents.

More than 5,150,000 hunting licenses were taken out during the season 1925-26 by sportsmen throughout the United States. Returns to State treasuries from these licenses amounted to $6,800,000. Although these figures do not show returns from four states, for which figures are not available, they surpass all previous records.

In the 1923-24 season, the licenses numbered 4,395,038 and the fees paid were $5,594,982. One year later 4,904,740 paid for their licenses a total of $6,190,863.94.

Ohio ranked next to Pennsylvania in the number of licenses issued with 361,080 and fees amounted to $362,050. In the amount of fees paid New York state, which issued 339,147 licenses, ranked second to Pennsylvania with $454,849.25.

OFFICIAL HOST LIVED IN BOX

Carroll, Financier, Once Lived In Alley; A Ragged Boy

CINCINNATI, April 6—Sixty-two years ago the official host of Queen Marie on her American tour was a ragged newsboy living in a packing case in a Cincinnati alley.

John H. Carroll, counsel for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was the boy, whose rise as lawyer, financier and host to royalty forms a chapter in the never-completed history of American opportunity.

In 1863, when Colonel Carroll was five years old, his mother was notified that her husband, a Union soldier, was dying of wounds in a southern camp. With her little boy she set out from her home in a New York village. She stopped here to do some shopping, left her son at the station and never returned. The father died. Thirty-five years later the son learned that his mother died in a hospital, of sunstroke, the day she left him.

The station agent turned the waif adrift after three days. He was found by a newsboy, George Wilson, now a merchant in Tacoma, Wash. Wilson gave him a home in a packing case in Baker alley. The two shared the packing case and sold newspapers.

On Christmas eve, 1864, the boys saw a Santa Claus giving out presents to other boys in a mission. Johnny hung up his stocking but all he received was a frostbitten foot. The next morning Murray Shipley, one of Cincinnati's wealthy residents, found Johnny sitting on the curb rubbing his foot. He took him to a neighbor, where Johnny lived the rest of that winter.

If a man can't hold his wife, one of two things is true: He isn't worthy of her, or she isn't worth holding.

Now they say Wilhelm had an inferiority complex. And we always thought the village show-off had swell-head.

Recipe for peace: Let the United States threaten to side hereafter against any nation that is about to achieve a victory.

But some people are tolerant merely because they have forgiven themselves often enough to get the habit.

MENU HINT

In buying the ham for baking it is much more economical to buy half a ham or so, as the butcher charges nearly as much again for the slices as he does for the piece. Don't buy it, however, if your family is so small you cannot use it (that is poor economy) unless you have a good neighbor who is in the same situation and will take part of it off your hands. Cut the slice from the piece.

Baked Ham
Apple Sauce Mashed Potatoes
Cabbage Salad

TODAY'S RECIPES

Baked Ham—Take a thick slice of ham, soak in cold water to draw the salt out. Place in baking pan, cover with thick layer of brown sugar and fine bread crumbs. Stick a few cloves in ham and fill pan with milk to come two-thirds as high as the ham. Bake (covered), allowing one-half hour for each pound.

Five-Minute Cake—Into a sifter put one and one-half cup pastry flour, one cup sugar, two teaspoons baking powder and pinch of salt. Sift three times. Break two eggs in measuring cup, beat lightly, fill cup with milk and add to the flour and sugar mixture. Beat well and add flavoring and last add five tablespoons of melted butter. Beat well. Bake in layers and put together with custard filling made of one cup milk, one egg yolk, one level dessertspoon of cornstarch, flavoring and a little salt. Cover outside with boiled icing.

SUGGESTIONS
Better Service

Brooms should be treated to a bath every few weeks if you want good work out of them. Dip in soapsuds until well cleansed, rinse and hang up to dry. This will make them last longer and give better service during their lieftime.

Important Trifles

To give a delightful flavor to prunes cook a slice of lemon with them.

Save the pasteboards that come in shirts from the laundry. They are invaluable when packing dresses for the summer vacation.

Honey Taffy

Four cups brown sugar, one cup cream, two teaspoons vinegar, one teaspoon butter. Boil until it hardens in water. Do not stir. Pull until a very light color.

Sapiro Remains On Witness Stand

Is Spending Ninth Day As Witness; Western Activities Delved Into

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

DETROIT, April 8.—The activities of Aaron Sapiro among western potato growers were featured today at the Ford-Sapiro libel suit as Henry Ford's attorneys sought to prove that Sapiro promoted farmers' cooperative associations for his own profit.

Sapiro, spending his ninth day on the witness stand, faced cross-examination on his action in securing a $2,500 loan for the Idaho Potato Growers' association from Weyl & Zuckerman, Los Angeles commission merchants. The money was used by the potato growers to organize a Sapiro cooperative. In a letter to the growers, Sapiro offered to arrange the loan and expressed the hope he would be employed as general counsel after the cooperative was organized.

Senator James A. Reed, chief of Ford's counsel, planned to show the jury that Sapiro later was employed as general counsel and that Weyl & Zuckerman were given the association's selling business. The association finally failed and Reed hoped to lay the blame at Sapiro's door.

The cooperative king will spend many more days on the witness stand. It was learned that his cross-examination will continue next with inquiries directed into his connection with the tobacco, peanut and prune industries. When that is finished, his own attorneys will keep him on the stand for further direct testimony to explain the scores of charges levelled at him by Reed. Then, he will be subject to further cross-examination.

Henry Ford probably will be recovered sufficiently from his recent automobile accident to take the stand when Sapiro finally concludes. This may not be for another ten days.

Verdict For Part Of Claim Is Given Against Burns Bros.

In the case of the Asociated Pennsylvania contractors against Burns Bros. which was tried before Judge Hildebrand the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for $121.50. Suit was brought for $400 which it was alleged that Burns Bros. owed for dues in the organization. Burns Bros. had joined the initial organization and paid the dues.

It was afterwards merged into a national organization which Burns Bros. clanmed that they did not belong and therefore objected to paying the dues.

The jury went out yesterday afternoon and remained out until about 10 o'clock. This morning a verdict was returned which was not made out properly and the jury was sent out again to change it. A second verdict was brought in which still did not meet the approval of the court and the jury was again sent out. The third verdict was accepted.

Can't A Feller See World?

It's A Fine Country When A Young Man's Journey Around Globe Is Stopped By Police

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch To New Castle News

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., April 7. —It is something like 21,000 miles around the world, which this boy started to circum-navigate and he had made 15 of it before the police called his mother and she took him back home. Thus ended what might have been a history-making expedition.

Albert Stewart, four-year-old son of Donald Stewart, San Francisco grain broker, decided to see the world. With a hat four times too large, a suitcase and hand-case almost as big as himself, he started out on his "world tour."

The Start.

Adventure seeking Albert boarded a train in Berkeley where the family make their home. He succeeded in crossing the bay to San Francisco without being questioned. His absence at home was not observed for several hours. A general alarm was given by his family who feared that the youngster had been kidnaped. Police found him trudging down Market street, with the suitcase in hand, and the light of adventure in his eyes, but very very hungry.

There were questions, evasions, inventions—then tears and a confession. He wanted to go away on a "big ship". A telephone message to the boy's mother ended the expedition of the young and tired Magellan.

The quality of KINGNUT is wonderful. Its flavor is unbeatable, it is rich in vitamines, its even spreading qualities could not be finer, its wholesomeness is unsurpassed and its pure, rich, nutritive features are excellent.

It is made of only four pure foods which are used almost daily by the housewife. Milk from the finest farms, which is pasteurized in our own clean, tiled milk room, selected peanuts from the sunny south, white meaty cocoanuts from which the pure cocoanut oil is pressed and refined, and the purest salt—nothing else.

These four ingredients are carefully blended together in large white enameled steel vats under the close supervision and care of an expert chemist. Each batch is carefully tested for uniformity of flavor and texture, it is automatically packed by steel white machinery—no hands touching it.

Could a spread for bread be really better? Truly, we can say KINGNUT is the best spread for bread. A product of the Capital City Products Co.

BLIND WOMAN LEARNS TO PLAY CLASSIC MUSIC

Denver Woman, Born Blind, Learns To Play By Novel Method

By M. F. DACEY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

DENVER, April 8—Although she has never seen a note of music, Miss Blanche McCarl, who was born blind, plays brilliantly the most difficult classics, and what may seem more marvelous, is teaching a class of youngsters who can see the musical symbols she has only "felt."

For Miss McCarl learned her notes from a musical staff constructed of five taut wires, on which were strung cleft, notes, and bars, and in her mind's eye, she visualizes the appearance of the music she plays.

Her method of learning a new composition is to have a friend read her the staff. She memorizes each note, and in a short time is able to play the complete piece.

Musical ambition stirred in Miss McCarl's breast when she was a seven-year-old inmate of the Colorado Springs Home for the Blind. She heard someone playing Beethoven's dainty minuet, and her little heart yearned to reproduce the haunting melody.

Her musical impulse was noted by a teacher, and she was given a chance to practice finger exercises. Her course through simple melodies, up to Beethoven's Sonata Appassionata, her latest accomplishment has been one of painstaking care and infinite work.

First she learned the New York point system, consisting of raised dots representing musical notes, similar to the Braille system for representing letters. Then she became familiar, through feeling the notes on her wire staff, with the actual appearance of the musical symbols, learned their names, and was able to translate them into piano notes when they were dictated to her.

She is now studying under Charlton Harris, himself blind, and expects to receive her diploma and a certificate to teach in a short time.

The mellow note of the huntsman's horn will soon resound from the foot of Pikes' Peak, as the morning sun gilds the snow at the summit of the famous old mountain, and the eager baying of the hounds will echo as the scarlet-clad horsemen dash across the foothills after elusive Bre'er Reynard.

Fox-hunting, held in as great reverence by your English squire as the ancestral sport of golf is by the kilted Scot, will invade the land of chapparal and spur this summer when the Colorado Springs Riding Club unleashes its pack of hounds for the West's first taste of the ancient pastime.

Riding is already one of the most popular sports in the Pikes Peak playground region, with establishment of the U. S. Army Remount Service, and many private stables. The addition of the pack of 17 hounds a gift of Austin J. Niblack of the Lake Forest, Chicago, Hunt Club, is expected to add a new stimulus to the flare for fine horses.

During the winter, the pack has been receiving primer lessons in the pursuit of the wily fox at the expert hands of Col. W. H. Neill, in charge of the Army Remount Station, and several practice chases have promised well for 'pprentice hounds.

Until foxes can be secured—coyotes, the prairie member of the canine tribe not being very satisfactory as game—"drag hunts" will be in order.

COURT IS BROKE SO JURORS OFFER SERVICES ON CREDIT

BUFFALO, April 8. — Faith in the ability of the United States government to pay its debts, even though immediate funds are lacking; caused 25 jurors at the civil term of federal court here to volunteer their services on the deferred payment plan.

When Judge Hazel explained that no funds were available with which to pay them the stipulated $4 a day and offered choice of service with payment to come or immediate discharge to 36 talesmen, 25 of them expressed their belief in the government's financial stability.

"It was a mighty commendable thing of them", said the judge. "It may not be until after Congress meets again next December that they will be paid."

CUMBERLAND INSANE ASYLUM WILL CLOSE DOORS; TO MOVE 82

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 8.—Sylvan Retreat, the only county institution for the insane remaining in Maryland, located on the suburbs of Cumberland, is to be closed by June 1 and the 82 patients removed to state hospitals. Dr. Arthur P. Herring, state commissioner of mental hygiene, advised the commissioners that with the completion of several new structures at the state hospitals there were accommodations for a considerable number of patients. The main reason for the removal is the fact that the big state institutions have better facilities for treatment.

The main building at Sylvan Retreat, a three-story brick structure, valued at $100,000 may be used as the county home, following alterations.

NEW YORK, April 8—The British Great War Veterans of America today took steps to provide a soldier's burial for Lieutenant Colonel John H. Brown, D. S. O., 60, who committed suicide Saturday by inhaling gas after hiding his real identity for three years.

Brown, veterans said, was second in command of the Seventy-third Canadian Regiment and had a distinguished record in France. The fact he had concealed his war record from all but consular authorities, never disclosed the stroke of ill-fortune that had left him penniless, and supported himself at humble occupations was explained as being "typical of the real British soldier, who would rather sleep in the park than ask for aid."

BERLIN SEES BIG GROWTH IN FUTURE

BERLIN, April 8.—Within fifteen years Berlin's population may surpass that of New York, according to the estimates of experts, published in the Berlin "Zeitung am Mittag." Compared to New York's approximate 6,000,000 inhabitants, Berlin now has 4,000,000.

It is suggested that in 15 or 20 years, Berlin will have a population close to 8,000,000. On the the same basis, it is computed that in 100 years Berlin's population will have increased to 125,000,000—more than the total population of the United States today.

These figures assume a growth of population of about 4 per cent annually.

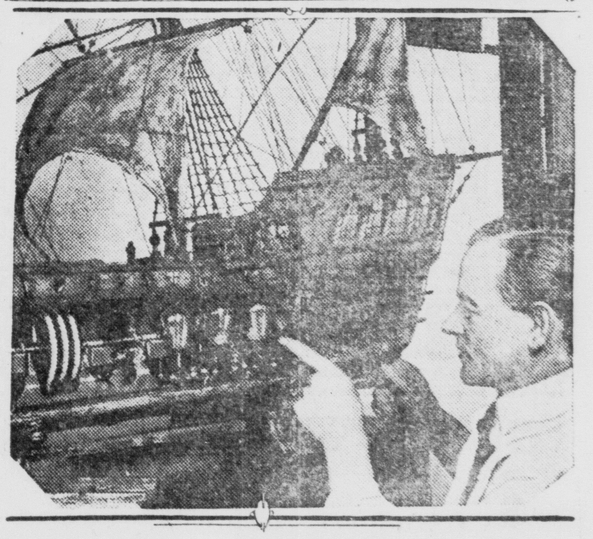
SHIP HOUSES NOVEL RADIO SET



A model of the "Santa Maria," flagship of Columbus's fleet, houses a novel radio set built by Karl Bauer, of New York. The ship, constructed of violin wood which adds to its tonal quality, encloses a five-tube receiving set, with two stages of radio frequency (tuned), detector and two of audio. Its sails are set in such a manner that they deflect and diffuse the output of the small cone loud speaker. Bauer is shown above with his set which he calls the "Stradivari." When he wishes to conceal the dials he replaces the ship's side. At night interior illumination adds to its appearance.

News Of Activities In Plaingrove Schools

PLAINGROVE, Pa., April 8. — After meticulous scrutiny of seeming myriads of possible senior plays, one has finally been selected. Its title is what a number of people are said to lack—"BACKBONE." A new comedy-drama in three acts and a royalty carrier at that, this should be the real hit of the season. Not only does the play abound in vivacious snap and corruscating humor, but underneath it all runs a subtle admonition to old and young. It is carded for Friday, the thirteenth of May.

As a result of its achievements along literary lines, Plaingrove high school is to receive a silver loving cup. It is to be purchased at a cost of not less than twenty-five dollars. This, along with the proper engraving of the cup, is under the general direction of Supt. Syling. According to the present arrangement, this cup becomes the permanent possession of a school if won by that school for three successive years. Otherwise the tenure is for the period of but one year.

It was the especial good fortune of the high school students recently to have Rev. J. E. Hughes, pastor of the local United Presbyterian church, conduct the chapel exercises. Aside from doing this, Rev. Hughes also gave an inspirational talk in which he showed very conclusively that financial disability is no longer a plausible reason for failure to receive an education. In support of his contention, he cited the fact that at Yale forty-five per cent of the honors given last year went to students who were wholly or partially self-supporting and also that one-third of the student body of that University is either wholly or partially self-supporting.

Despite lack of proper training facilities, the high school boys are interested in getting themselves into good physical condition for the county athletic meet of May 14th. At the invitation of Prof. Roy Conway, principal of Union High, the principals have decided to hold the meet there.

Prof. Ball, assistant county superintendent, was a recent visitor at the school. In one class he gave a quite interesting discussion of the P. S. E. A. Convention at Dallas, Texas, which he attended as a representative of Lawrence county.

Here are the high school boys who had perfect attendance records for the past month: Herman Donley, Raymond Eppinger, Albert Foster, Louis Guarnieri, Kenneth McCommon, Harry Sankey, Gaylord Shaw, Merle Stone; per cent of attendance, 96. Girls: Ruth Adams, Erla Bingham, Mabel Bingham, Elizabeth Hamilton, Hilda Hamilton, Helen Houston, Jessie Kildoo, Margaret McCune, Martha McCune, Louise Miles, Elizabeth McNulty, Margaret Montgomery, Agnes Moore, Helen Patterson, Maxine Ray, Claribel Sankey, Alta Thompson; per cent of attendance, 98.

Miss Graham's room—boys; Loyd Barcheck, Tony Chestlie, James Dight, Clarence Martin, Dean McBride, Lloyd Moore, Donald Patterson, Harry Ray, John Rzicnek, Stanley Roudybush, Frank Sharek; per cent of attendance, 98. Miss Jack's room—Boys: Clyde Adams, Steve Chestlie, Howard Cunningham, Raymond Graham, Walter Hogue, John McNulty, Alrick Miles, Walter Minor, Harold Offutt, James Pollock, Walter Rodgers, Clarence Schell, James Schell, George Teleis, Calvin Winder, Joseph Sharek; per cent of attendance, 96. Kirls: Irene Caldwell, Beulah Filer, Velma Filer, Grace Hogue, Isabelle Miles, Nellie Sharek, Irene Wallace; per cent of attendance, 95.

Girls: Ruth Bingham, Dorthy Brenneman, Eva Hamilton, Elva Hohman, Gladys Filer, Dorthy Ketler, Alta McNulty, Lillian Patterson, Helen Teleis, Mary Sharek; per cent of attendance, 98.

On Friday afternoon, April 8th, the high school students will present the following literary program:

Senior High School Selecting Motto

At the present time the students of the senior high school are selecting a motto for the school.

"Nothing But the Best" has been used as the school insignia for several years. This motto however was taken from one of the classes graduating several years ago and was never voted upon by the school as a whole.

The motto's are given in Latin as well as in English. Those being considered are "Perge Modo," "Only Go On" or "Forward March"; "Fama Vivat Semper," "May Her Fame Live Always"; "Ad Utrumque Paratus," "Prepare for Either Event," (Victory or Defeat); "Age Quod Agis," "Attend to the Job at Hand."

The students choice will be made known as soon as possible.

Coast Students In Euripides Revival

(International News Service)

BERKELY, Cal., April 8.—A revival of plays of Euripides, the Greek tragedian who flourished 400 years before Christ, is in progress in East Bay schools.

Staged in the true classic style, Euripides' "Iphigenia in Tauris" was presented by Mills college students this month.

"Trojan Women," Euripides' great tragedy telling of the fate of the women of Ilion, who were taken into slavery by the Greeks following their capture of Troy, will be presented in the University of California open-air theatre early in April.

Radio Moving Pictures Common In Future In America Is Belief

Television Experiment Is Successful In Every Degree In Test

Will Use Wave Channels To Transmit Still And Moving Pictures

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Radio moving picture reproducers will be just as common in the America of the future as the ordinary receiving set of the present time, Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the radio laboratory of the bureau of standards, declared today.

Following the remarkable demonstration of television and visual radio, by the American Telephone & Telegraph company, Dellinger said that it is a simple step from sending pictures over the wire, to routing them through the air—from experimental demonstration to commercial practice.

For the wire channel of communication will be substituted a "carrier wave" over which the electrical impulses representing pictures of actual events glide through the ether to be recreated in action on the screen of the receiving set.

Not only will visual radio become a practical accomplishment, but it will be possible to produce apparatus to bring pictures of events to the home of the family of moderate means, as cheaply as are manufactured the ordinary radio receivers of today, according to Dellinger.

Commission Impressed.

Experimental use of a number of radio wave channels on regular schedule for broadcasting still and moving pictures are anticipated by the federal radio commission. Members of the commission are deeply impressed with this rapidly developing phase of the art and are prepared to set aside certain channels for its continuation.

Within the next 12 months, in the opinion of officials, a number of wave channels will be in use in the transmitting of still and moving pictures. While practical reception of action pictures is not anticipated immediately, officials said that the long step demonstrated by the telephone corporation yesterday assures this new form of entertainment, education and profit to the public.

To Reserve Channels.

"Experimental broadcasting of actual events has been accomplished," Dellinger said.

"The principles involved are sound. It is but a step from laboratory and field experiment to apply these principles to commercial usage."

The radio commission tentatively plans to reserve a number of wave channels between 150 and 200 meters for experimental use in transmitting pictures. A number of applications for picture broadcasting will be filed with the commission soon, it was understood.

Scranton Officers Given Sentences In Conspiracy Plots

(International News Service)

SCRANTON, Pa., April 8.—Thomas O'Loughlin, former Scranton alderman; James McHale, former police chief of Archbald borough, and Oscar Chertok, former private detective of Scranton, were sentenced in the Lackawanna county court today for conspiracy in connection with the extortion of money from liquor law violators.

O'Loughlin and McHale were each fined $200 and the court costs and sentenced to two years in the county prison. Chertok, world war veteran and father of five children, was fined $200 and court costs and sentenced to 18 months in the county jail. Sentences were imposed by Judge Watson R. Davison of Chambersburg, specially presiding in the case.

The three men were found guilty by a jury yesterday. McHale and Chertok were charged with making arrests of liquor law violators and taking them before O'Loughlin who took money from the violators in order to prevent the cases from going into court.

Claims Columbus Undertaker Made Love To Her; Bought Ring, Then Quit

(International News Service)

COLUMBUS, O., April 8.—Auburn-haired Lucille Franks, Pittsburgh stenographer, today took the witness stand in her 10,000 breach of promise suit against Glenn Myers, Columbus undertaker.

A ring given her by Myers while she worked for him, she testified, was returned at his request and made to fit the "third finger" of the woman who is now Myers second wife.

Lucille said she objected when Myers placed the photograph of the "other woman" on his desk beside that of his deceased wife. She said he "didn't see any harm in it" and discharged her.

The other woman, now Myers' wife, she testified, moved her furniture in to Myers' home before the marriage. Myers claims Lucille broke the engagement.

Exhibits made up of approximately 100 letters written by either, will drag the hearing into next week.

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 8.—Three youths, all of East Vandergrift, Pa., today faced indeterminate terms in Huntingdon reformatory, while a fourth was granted a new trial on charges of drugging and attacking Blanche Castell, 19, also of East Vandergrift, last September.

The girl was found in a serious condition near here after the alleged attack, and brought to a Pittsburgh hospital, where she was under a physician's care for nearly a month.

All seemed to be enthusiastic in backing the outing.

Other local men will bring the affair before the different posts and meeting during the next two months The April number of the American Legion Booster is to be given over principally to the boosting of the picnic.

Japanese Saving To Pay National Debt

(International News Service)

TOKIO April 8.—To pay off the entire foreign debt of Japan by inducing each Japanese to save one sen about a half cent in American money a day is the object of the Patriotic Savings society which has just been organized. The society is semi-official in the sense that it is receiving the support of several departments of the government and its sponsors and officials are leading social workers.

"We propose to pay off Japan's national foreign debt with our savings" said Miss Azuna Moriya a member of the executive committee "This debt has been increasing with alarming rapidity and the time has now come when the people must share directly the responsibility for it."

It is estimated that if every person in Japan saves one sen a day the present foreign debt of Japan could be repaid in about 24 years.

"LOVE PIRACY" CASE STOPS WITH RETURN OF GIRL'S $15,000

NATCHEZ, Miss., April 8.—A "love pirate" case against Fred R. Hymel ended abruptly when the prosecution was stopped at the request of Miss Catherine McKittrick, society girl and heiress, who instituted the charges.

The stopping of prosecution followed an agreement between the principals and counsel that $15,000 which Miss McKittrick claimed Hymel received from her under protests of love and affection would be returned. Mrs. Gladys Stacks Hymel, who was married to Hymel two days before Miss McKittrick stated she expected to marry him, entered the court only once, coming to the front today and conferred for a few minutes with her husband.

LIBERAL CLUB IS SUPPRESSED

Organization At State Normal School At West Chester Is Disbanded

(International News Service)

WEST CHESTER, Pa., April 8.—The suppression of the Liberal club, a students' organization of the local State Normal school today was the latest step in the American legion's drive against so-called "liberals" in state schools. Dr. Andrew Thomas Smith, principal of the school, ordered the club to discontinue its meetings and activities.

The suppression of the club follows an investigation by the American Legion post here which ended in the dismissal of Dr. Robert T. Kerlin, faculty advisor of the club and Dr. John A. Kinneman, of the Social Science department.

The legionnaries objected to "disrespectful criticism" of the government's Nicaraguan policy. The ex-service men oppose the existence of debating organizations such as the Liberal club in tax-supported schools.

Note Changes In College World

Westminster Students Resume Studies After Spring Vacation

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., April 8.—With spring vacation at an end and only two months of school remaining, many changes are taking place at Westminster College.

First of all, practically all the student organizations are now guided by new officers. Miss Evelyn Winger of New Castle, is now president of the Y. W. C. A., Donald McClure of Blairsville, is president of the Y. M. C. A. and Claire Swisher of Mahoningtown, editor of The Holcad, the college newspaper.

Election of a new staff for The Argo, the yearbook published by the Junior class, will be held in the near future. Student council elections are also slated for the near future.

Again the male members of the Freshman class are wearing their "cute" little dinks. It is a tradition at Westminster, that Freshmen wear their dinks in the fall until Christmas and then they are permitted to stow them away until spring vacation and then they must be worn until the end of the year.

The spasmodic spring sunshine of the past few weeks has already caused a change in the campus. The grass is beginning to show signs of life and other unmistakeable indications of spring are in evidence.

April Fool Jokers Missing This Year

York Mayor And Police Miss Their Usual Jokester's Barrage

(International News Service)

YORK, April 8.—Mayor E. S. Hugentugler and the city police department are wondering what has become of the April fool joke.

April 1, 1927, passed without one false alarm of fire, without a single fake call for the ambulance and the mayor got by this year without being the butt of a single hoax. Last year the mayor nearly broke a molar trying to masticate a section of chocolate-coated sash rope and Highway Commissioner Edward C. Boeckel ate three chocolate-coated spring onions and declared they tasted good.

When April Fools day arrived this year all city hall was on its toes and expecting almost anything to happen but nothing noteworthy in the hoax line occurred.

Stores in the city where rubber cigars, rubber "candy" and other trick articles were on sale for April 1 reported that they found sales poor and declared that they would not bother handling the stuff in coming years.

From a business standpoint, also, April 1 is not what is used to be in York, nor in other towns in farming districts. Years ago it was the custom for the farmers to save up all their business in the city for April 1, for many of them because of poor roads and slow conveyances made only a few trips to the county seat in a year. Improved highways and the flivver has changed all that. The farmers comes to the city whenever the necessity arises for he can make the trip in half a day by means of the automobile as against one or two days in the time of the horse and buggy.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation. Prevents Indigestion, Sour Gassy Stomach.

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and know these things will not cure their trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

DEFECTIVE EYESIGHT

A prominent health officer recently stated that of 100,000 pupils of the New York City public schools who failed to be promoted, fully half—50,000 children are held back by defective eyesight and not by lack of brains.

This authority states,

"It is amazing how many persons there are in the United States suffering from defective eyesight. In the first draft of the American soldiers in 1917 bad eyesight caused nearly three times as many rejections as any other physical defect. At the time of this draft 2,510,706 men, between the ages of 21 and 31, were examined and 730,756, or 29.11 per cent were rejected for physical reasons. One table, based upon the rejection of 10,258 men from representative sections of the country, showed that 2,224 had been rejected for defective eyesight, a percentage of 21.68."

Gradually the general public is realizing the importance of caring for the teeth in order to preserve good health, but the eyes, the most important part of our physical equipment, are often neglected until the actual fear of blindness drives the sufferer into taking the necessary means of preserving them.

"The proper time to remedy defects in eyesight is when boys and girls are young. No child should be sent out into the world handicapped by a defect that, in most instances, could be overcome by a pair of glasses, properly adjusted at the proper time."

Dr. H. H. Rosenthal realizing the urgent need of many persons who are consciously or unconsciously neglecting their eyes, has evolved a plan whereby anyone can be scientifically treated and fitted in glasses.

In other words YOU can now buy your glasses on a credit basis—by paying small amounts instead of a bulk sum—the same as you can buy everything else.

Dr. Rosenthal is a graduate registered optometrist, with years of experience behind him and his equipment, etc., is the newest and of the best.

Should you need glasses the mere shortage of cash need not worry you anymore. You can have them charged and pay for them at your convenience.

If you have ever thought of getting glasses but did not have the money and need glasses—here is your opportunity.

King Orders Mast Of Yacht Britannia Shortened 4 Feet

(International News Service)

SOUTHAMPTON, April 8. — Britannia, the King's racing yacht, is to have her mast cut by four feet.

This, says Major Philip Hunloke, the King's yachting adviser in chief is the result of a decision recently endorsed by the Yacht Racing Association.

The decision, which Hunloke thinks would be excellent in practice, especially for the big classes, was in the measurement of sail area. The big classes of yachts have never been measured at all up to now, and this has not always been a good course.

This year they will have to be measured before they come out, and no alteration will be permitted afterwards without notice being given and sanction obtained.

Many yachtsmen think that the weight of masts hitherto has been ridiculous, because if there came on a big blow, many owners have not cared to start, the risk being too great, and if they did start it has been odds on several breaking down.

There was a nasty experience of the kind last summer when Shamrock carried her mast away, White Heather had a bad accident, while Britannia lay flat on the water for more than five minutes.

"There will be a new feature in yachting this summer," says Hunloke, "through the Prince of Wales giving a cup for competition by dinghies. It will mean a large development in this small class and at least fifty of these boats will compete at Cowes."

Many Farm Homes Have Telephones

Lawrence county rates rather low in the number of telephones in the farm homes although our neighbor stands fourth among the counties on the state in rural telephones.

More than 124,600 farms or 62 per cent of all farms in Pennsylvania have telephones, according to the latest estimate of the Bureau of Statistics, State Department of Agriculture. Seven years ago, approximately 100,000 farms had telephones.

The leading counties in percentage of farms having telephones are: Bradford, 87 per cent; Butler, 82; Chester, 80; Clarion, 76; Cumberland, 79; Delaware, 75; Franklin, 77; Greene, 78; Juniata, 77; Lycoming, 76; Philadelphia, 93; Susquehanna, 79; Union, 77; Washington, 85; Westmoreland, 79.

RICKARDS CANDIDATE AGAIN

Council Hears Report Of Surplus In Poor Fund

Over $5,000 Reverts From Poor Board To Council Or School Board

Ordinances For Paving Of Several Streets Introduced At Meeting

ELLWOOD CITY, April 8.—At the regular monthly meeting of the borough council, which convened Thursday evening in the city hall, Dr. Charles Bell, as chairman of the borough poor board, gave a lengthy report, the outstanding feature being a surplus of $5,519.76. The question put by Dr. Bell was, what was to become of this surplus upon the dissolution of the overseers of the poor committee. He quoted a statute of 1919 which stated that such surplus reverts back to the school board. Later in 1921 a statute maintained that such money was to be paid to the borough treasurer. Dr. Bell felt personally disposed toward giving the money to the school board, in view of heavy expenses incurred in school buildings. This matter was discussed some time ago and Attorney Humphrey had rendered a written opinion which was read by the borough secretary as follows: That in 1925, dated January 6, the code of poor laws stated that all money left over on the retiring of the poor board, shall, when all business has been transacted and all debts paid, be turned over to the borough council. This act of 1925 suspends any previous acts automatically.

"Mr. Tate was present and asked that in event of the council taking over the surplus, that the poor board would have ample protection. The members of council finally turned the matter over to the borough solicitor and members of the finance committee with power to act.

Ordinances.

An ordinance sponsored by J. L. Kennedy for the paving of Clyde street, with the property owners assessed two-thirds of the cost was introduced and passed on first and final reading by a suspension of rules and regulations of council.

The grading ordinance sponsored by J. L. Kennedy was passed on first reading.

Another ordinance sponsored by J. L. Kennedy for the grading of Smiley street was passed on first reading.

The storm sewer ordinance sponsored by the sewer committee, for placing of storm sewers on Factory avenue, Ninth street and Park avenue and also the ordinance of S. D. Coates for the placing of a storm sewer on Chestnut way to Sixth street were passed on first reading.

The ordinance in regard to public dances requiring a permit from the burgess and the stationing of one or more policemen at the discretion of that official, and the payment of same, was passed on third and final reading.

Passed on second reading was an ordinance levying taxes for 1927 as follows: General 10 mills, sinking fund 4¼ mills and library tax ¾ mill.

Complaint Heard.

A communication was read by the borough secretary from Dr. H. E. Helling complaining of the condition of the borough streets after repair work had been done, or gas lines fixed. He particularly mentioned Fountain avenue, which has been in a state of upheaval for several weeks since laying a new gas sewer down one side of the street. If bricks are not to be replaced right, why should the people pay money to the city for the placing of concrete bases under the brick streets? asked the doctor. Some discussion followed the reading of this letter, and it was learned that the gas company has permission to tear up the street, and replacements are to be made by the borough. The company has been under a $1,000 bond for this privilege, and Borough Engineer Mains contends that the last bond has expired and a new one should be made for a larger amount to take care of the expense of fixing the streets. Final action of the council was to put the matter in the hands of the finance committee and the borough solicitor with power to act.

Petitions.

Petition for a better light, or rather the placing of a light on Spring avenue between Fourth and Fifth streets was presented. Council referred this to the electric light committee with power to act.

Men residing in the vicinity of the overhead bridge at Second street petitioned for a light to be placed at the north end of the bridge for the benefit of the men working in the mill on night shift. The matter was referred to the electric light committee with power to act.

A petition was received from a property owner on South Second street, claiming that in relocating the street the city cut off one-third of his property, and he claims that he should not be taxed the full amount. His case was referred to the finance committee and borough solicitor with power to act.

Sewage Disposal.

Bids were received for fence prices to be used on the sewage disposal plant and replies were read last night as follows: Harbison & Yahn, $1637.02; Stewart Holland company of Pittsburgh, $1185. The bids were referred to the sewer committee and borough engineer to investigate and report back to council.

Paving Bids.

It was decidedd to avertise for paving bids on the streets mentioned in the above ordinances.

A bill was presented from A. E. Conner and company for damages done their plate glass show window when Chief Teeter accidentally broke a pane of glass when a bullet glanced from the sidewalk during the mad dog campaign here. The bill was referred to the police committee.

The last feature of last night's meeting was a standing vote of the members with regards to daylight savings. The majority were in favor.

Rotarians Hear Interesting Report

Plan To Hear "Daddy Allen" On Crippled Children At Rochester On 19th

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., April 8.—C. A. Pike gave a most interesting report of the recent District convention of Rotary clubs which took place in McKeesport, March 24 and 25, at the weekly dinner meeting of the club Thursday night in the Presbyterian church. Convention members were men from the 33rd district which embraces 55 clubs. The banquets and informal meetings were conducted in the Penn-McKee Hotel, while sessions convened in the Elks Temple of McKeesport.

Among the interesting figures of Rotary International was Leonard Skeggs of Youngstown, who was one of the main speakers, and gave a spirited address. A Rotary International member from Genoa, Italy was present and gave a talk.

Eight hundred and seventy-six Rotarians registered for the convention, and about one third of these had their wives with them, which brought the attendance record up to about 1,000.

Kiwanians Hear Lieutenant-Governor

Interesting Talk On Moral Side Of The Underprivileged Child Question

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., April 8.—At the last minute Byron McCandless who was slated to give a talk on his world tour before the weekly dinner meeting of the Kiwanis club in the Methodist church could not be present.

Fortunately the lieutenant governor of Kiwanis, Attorney Homer Swaney of Beaver Falls, was present and most interestingly filled in the breach.

His topic was chosen at random and dealt with the disadvantages of the under priviliged child, not so much for a health standpoint, as from the moral view. His plea was to keep the children off the street and stated that a recent percentage of child crime today is from the fact that there was little or no parental supervision. He further told interesting facts on his experience with various judges throughout the country in his law work and cited true cases of child crimes.

The musical portion of the evening's program was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Macgeorge and a group of Xylophone players and Swiss bell ringers who recived their training in the weekly children's hour entertainments which which have been given weekly in the Baptist church. The little program was well given and delightfuly received.

Ford To Continue Four Cylinder Car

Plans To Announce New Four Cylinder Car In Early Summer Is Report

Copyright, 1927, By International News Service.

DETROIT, April 8.—Henry Ford will build four cylinder cars, with a planetary transmission, as long as he lives, International News Service learned today.

In line with his policy, Mr. Ford now plans to announce a new model four-cylinder car this coming summer. It will be a three-forward-speed car, with a new design of planetary transmission, underslung semi-elyptic springs, a lower body and a chassis and frame of aluminum and steel.

The new Ford probably will be ready for distribution by July 1 but Mr. Ford has not as yet definitely fixed the date for placing the car on the market. Its price has not been determined but Mr. Ford now contemplates a considerable reduction over existing prices.

A new eight-cylinder car is being experimented upon at the Ford factories now and this too may be announced at the same time. If trade conditions warrant further delay, this machine may not be placed on the market until next fall It will be Edsel Ford's contribution to motordom and Henry Ford has not shown anywhere near the interest in it that he is giving to the new four-cylinder Ford.

The eight-cylinder car probably will enter the selling lists at somewhere between $1,000 and the present $1,400 class of six cylinder cars.

It will bear a new name and will not be identified with the present eight-cylinder Lincoln, which is Edsel's pride and the aristocrat of the Ford industry. The name "Edsel" was suggested but Mr. Ford is understood to have frowned upon it.

WHEN A FELLOW NEEDS A FRIEND

It was very pleasant out on the porch of the old brown farmhouse. The sun and the brook were playing hide and seek beneath two weeping willows that leaned across the stream to gossip together. A little breeze came hurrying along and stopped to whisper to the willows, and what it told them must have pleased them, for they rustled with laughter. A little bird perched on a willow twig overheard what the breeze had said and after the breeze had blown on its way repeated its message as loudly as he could, so that every one within hearing might know it.

"It's going to be a fine day, all day long!" trilled he. "Fearing we might believe winter is never going to go away and leave us, spring has sent us a few hours of fair, warm weather to let us know she is on her way. Heigho, neighbors, one and all, what good news! Suppose you do have to take to your shelters as soon as twilight falls and stay in them for a while longer—come on out now and make the best of the bright sunshine and blue sky and soft breeze while they are here with us."

Hearing the merry tra-la-la of the little bird, a violet shyly peeped out of its green arbor, a bee came buzzing to light on a crocus bud nearby; a bettle crawled out from behind a stone and wished the world "good morning". Mrs. Duck and her friend, Mrs. Hen, waddled along the gravelled bank to the willows, and Robin Red Breast, as polite a bird as ever lived, hopped to meet and greet them.

All this, however, Peter never noticed. He was sitting on the porch, lost in a brown study. Funny how for months he'd been longing for a vacation, and, now that he had a whole day off from school to himself, he didn't know what to do with it. It was too nice to tinker indoors and there was nobody to play with outdoors, and, oh shaw! He might as well be with the gang in the classroom doing his lessons as here all by himself, for all the fun he was having! Just then the little bright-eyed bird spied Peter.

"Oh look who's there!" twittered he. "Peter the two-legs, who speaks the language of all living things and is a friend to your folks and my folks, good neighbors"

Shy violet, busy bee, fat Mrs. Duck and her friend, Mrs. Hen, and the black-coated beetle all turned to look at Peter.

"Come on down and talk to us!" chirped the little bird. "We would enjoy nothing better." And Peter, roused from his thoughts by the bird's shill, merry voice, looked up and saw the group beneath the willows. Peter's heart began to beat a little faster. Peter's eyes began to twinkle.

"Well, of all things! Just when a fellow needs a friend here are a crowd of friends waiting!" Peter waved a hand in greeting, and, jumping up from his chair, ran down the farmhouse steps and joined the group beneath the willows.

"I'm Peter, all right!" cried he, "and not only can I speak the language of all living creatures, thanks to the old oak tree, who gave me the magic gift of speech because I saved it from being chopped down (dear old tree: there it stands over yonder)—as I was saying, not only can I talk to the birds and the bees and the flowers, but when I cry 'Watch! Listen!' I can become as large or as small as my beast, bird and flower friends are!"

"Hurrah!" twittered the little bird, and all the others echoed his delight. "We all know that, too, two-legs. For a long time we've been wishing you would play with us, and now here you are!"

Next: "A Bitter Bit of Blue."

HEYDLER FORCES ISSUE OF STAR

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor Internat'al News Service

PITTSBURGH, April 8.—Conservative to the end, John A. Heydler and the National League beg to announce that at last they feel themselves entitled to enjoy some of the national irritation contiguous to the questions and answers game and that, fairly reveling in their pain, they began asking themselves embarrassing questions promptly at 11 o'clock this morning. The questions were a bit difficult, but answers are what the boys are seeking and these may prove downright baffling.

Special Meeting

They will take the strange case of Rogers Hornsby, financier or ball player, or both, as their focal point, the occasion being a special league meeting, called to see what can be done, if anything, about a young man who harbors the unique notion that property is something you sell at your own, your personal valuation, or not at all. However, there are other considerations at issue, including the ethical question of whether a man really should be part owner of one club and second baseman of another.

That is one of the questions that John and his men must dally with today. Others will include the following:

Will Hornsby steadfastly hold out for $105 a share for his stock in the St. Louis Cardinals, a full valuation of $122,535?

Can he be beaten down to Sam Breadon's best offer, which happens to be $60 a share?

Heydler Justified

Will he, all compromises failing, attempt to start the season at second base for the Giants next Tuesday?

In which case will Heydler be justified in adhering to his official akase that Hornsby cannot be eligible to play for the Giants while holding stock in a rival club, and will Heydler then go so far as to have the umpire in charge order Hornsby out of the park?

And, if this is to be done, will John McGraw stick to his announced determination to obtain an injunction against the National League interfering with Hornsby's pursuit of happiness and money, or both, thus taking the entire issue into court, as Hornsby has threatened to do for weeks?

Frankly, a compromise seemed to be the only solution as the league prepared to go into session at the William Penn hotel this morning. Heydler already has tendered Hornsby a proposition, whereby the price-fixing would be left to an arbitration committee, mutually agreeable to himself and Breadon, but it is understood that Hornsby's attorney, William Fahey, replied that there was "nothing to arbitrate".

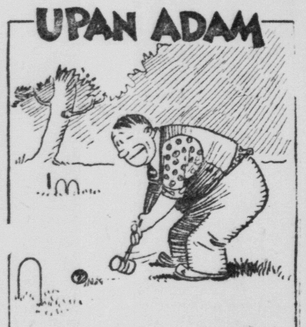
Hornsby, he intimates, was traded to the Giants without his consent after he had won the pennant and world series for the Cardinals last fall and that, therefore, it is up to the league, which countenanced the trade, to see that its ethics are clear. He also makes the point of law that no one can interfere with a man's livelihood because he refuses to sell his own property.

Counter Claims

The league has countered with the claim that Hornsby was glad to come to New York and that he proved it by accepting a salary of $30,000, whereas he was refusing $50,000 a year in St. Louis. It also questions Hornsby's ethics in signing a New York contract when he knew, it charges, that his price of $105 a share would act as an almost prohibitive impediment to the sale of his stock.

Quite so; there will be plenty of agitation today, not the least of which may be occasioned by Hornsby's threat to report every day at the ball park and thus collect his salary from the Giants, whether he plays or not.

Still, peace would seem to be the inevitable outcome and, in this connection it may be noted with due approval that Hornsby decided yesterday to attend the meeting at Heydler's request and has so notified his barrister, who was en route from St. Louis to New York. Previously he was all for turning up absent, which might have succeeded in getting everyone nowhere with great rapidity, Hornsby included.



"Clark Griffith's team may not get anywhere but with a goose and a gray eagle he has a bird of an outfield."

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

By ED. FRITZ

Jake Pitler, former manager of Oil City and who was a member of the Pirates previous to entering the ranks of outlaw baseball, has been tentatively reinstated and will manage Greensburg and play second base this season. Pitler is the property of the Toledo club of the American Association but has received permission to play with Greensburg providing he does not compete with or against ineligible players.

Red Mason acted as plea-maker at Motor Square last night, Pittsburgh, asking fans to refrain from raspberrying Cuddy De Marco, a home-town boy, until they had seen him work and when the bell sounded De Marco went to work on Joey LeGray, of Johnstown, who has been annexing knockouts. Cuddy showed a lot of stuff and pasted LeGray, the Johnstown boy not getting a chance to produce a sleep potion.

President Heydler and other moguls of the National League are meeting today in Pittsburgh in an attempt to settle the Rogers Hornsby stock tangle. Recently Hedler declared Hornsby could not play with the Giants unless he disposed of his holdings in the Cardinals club. John McGraw, manager of the Giants, told Heydler Hornsby would play and if necessary he would carry the case to court. As a result the meeting will be held today. Hornsby wants a certain figure for his stock and President Sam Breadon doesn't want to give it to him. That's the bulk of the argument, excepting that Heydler does not want Hornsby to play for the Giants while he has in interest in the National League champions.

Pittsburgh boxing fans will attend a benefit bout for Eddie Wilmer, featherweight boxer of a few years ago, who has been injured for life while working in a coal mine. Wimler has a wife and several children. Eddie Wilmer was popular with the fans and was known as the Fair Haven miner. He was a tough as hickory and generally gave as much as he received. He was at his heyday 10 years ago and fought practically all of the topnotchers.

Ban Johnson Is Ready To Return As League Mogul

(International News Service)

DETROIT, April 8.—Frank Navin, acting president of the American league, today indicated that he has no objections to Ban Johnson taking over the reins of the American league—if Johnson has recovered his health.

"While I have not yet been officially notified of Mr. Johnson's return to the executive offices of the league I know of no reason at present why he should not return to his duties if he feels well enough," Navin said.

Pitler To Manage Greensburg Club

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, April 8.—The new Pennsylvania loop, consisting of Greensburg, New Kensington, Latrobe and Butler, will see Jake Pitler, who was banished from baseball years ago for jumping the Pittsburgh Pirates to play with Oil City, managing and playing second base for Greensburg, it was reported here today. The Toledo American Association club, which owns Pitler, has agreed to permit him to play with Greensburg providing he does not play with or against players on the organized baseball ineligible list, it was said.

New Rules Will Be Tried Out

High Jump, Pole Vault And Hurdles Rules Are Changed

WILL SEE EFFECT AT PENN RELAYS

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—The new rules for the high jump, pole vault and hurdles which were recently adopted by the I. C. A. A. A. A. will get their baptism in the Thirty-Third annual Relay Carnival of the University of Pennsylvania on April 29 and 30.

Lawson Robertson, coach of the Pennsylvania track team and head coach of the last Olympic team is authority for the statement that the new rules are a step in the right direction and will greatly aid rather than hinder the athletes.

The changes are result of movements that have been going on in international councils and also in the associations responsible for athletics in this country. The A. A. U. and the I. C. A. A. A. A. have accepted the International Federation ruling on the high jump and the pole vault while the I. C. A. A. A. A. thus far is alone in adopting the new hurdle rule, which, however, has met with universal praise.

Another change that has been adopted for all races by the international federation is that concerning false starts. In international competition hereafter an athlete making two false starts is excluded from the race while he is not penalized on the first false start.

The I. C. A. A. A. A. has adopted the ruling for the hurdles but not has as yet accepted the ruling for the other events.

The high jump and pole vault rules call for the changing of the pins for the uprights and the bar. Instead of the bar being at right angles on the pins away from the contestant, the bar will now rest on a small platform facing inward so that it cannot be held by any trick or act of the jumper.

This rule is the culmination of a long discussion in international circles over the past fifteen years. It has been repeatedly alleged that certain individuals in the high jump cleared the bar at maximum heights by a trick of pressing the crossbar against the standards while at the apex of their flight.

Germany asked for a change in the rule at the last meeting of the International Federation at the Hague last August and based their reasons on a moving picture of a famous high jumper, which showed that it was possible and illegal for the jumper to prevent the bar from falling. The rule was adopted internationally and accepted by the A. A. U. and the I. C. A. A. A. A., the former in November and the latter in March.

The new hurdle rule calls for no penalty when a hurdle is knocked down by a contestant. He may knock down any number of hurdles without suffering disqualification. The new hurdle must weigh 25 pounds and must be twenty-six inches in length at the base.

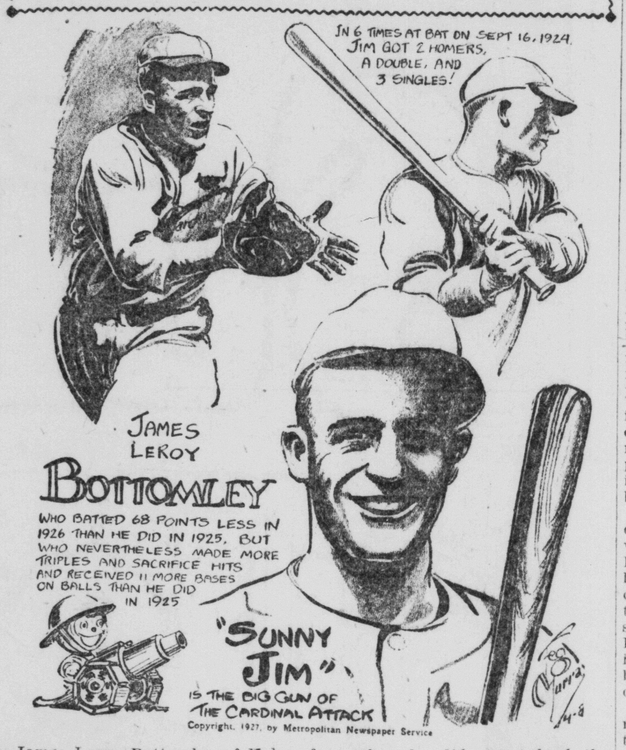
The hurdles of old were made of thin wood and were easy to knock down but with the increasing weight of the timber and the increasing width at the base, it was no longer easy to knock the hurdles down.

Opinions were sought from such world's, Olympic and national champions as Alvin Kraenzlein, Simpson and Earl Thompson and all agreed that an athlete was hindered rather than helped when he knocked down a hurdle.

The standards and hurdles at Pennsylvania are now being changed to comply with the new rules and will be placed on Franklin Field for the Relay Carnival. Athletes generally have approved of the new rule changes.

Over .300 or Bust!

By Feg Murray



James Leroy Bottomley of Nakomis, Illinois is out for blood this year. "Sunny Jim" the rough, likable first baseman of the World's Champion St. Louis Cardinals is vowing vengeance on opposing National league pitchers for reducing his batting average last year to the paltry figure of .299, the first time that it had fallen below the .300 mark since he entered the major leagues in 1922.

A glance at Bottomley's work in the world series of 1926 will show nothing to be ashamed of; in fact his offensive and defensive play was a very potent factor in the Cardinals' triumph. Against the Yankees he batted .345 and fielded perfectly which is a record to be proud of. Yet James Leroy is not happy—his heart is sad and the nickname of "Sunny Jim" fits him not at all—all because of that batting average of .299 for the season of 1926.

A close study of Bottomley's achievements for the 154 scheduled games in which he played last year will show much to be pelased with in spite of the drop of 68 points from his 1925 batting average. Jim drove in 120 runs in 1926, more than any one else in the National league did. I suppose he feels badly because he brought in eight more runs than that the year before when he did not lead the league. True Bottomley struck out 16 more times than he did the season before but he worked the pitchers for 11 more free trips to first besides being hit by the hurlers twice more than in 1925. Also, he made six more secrifice hits, two more triples and stole one more base, so his record does show an improvement in several departments.

Now that Bottomley's late skipper the Rajah of Hornsby, has moved to the Giants, Jim will team up with Frankie Frisch late of New York as the newest Cardinal combination for batting in runs. Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel of the Yankees batted in 305 runs in 1921 an average of 1.01 a game. The most that Hornsby and Bottomley ever accounted for was 271 runs in 1925. If Frisch feels the same way that Sunny Jim does about it they may beat Ruth's and Meusel's record.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

By NORMAN E. BROWN

There is considerable reason for reflection and speculation regarding various individuals of baseball as the major league season opens.

For instance there is the ever present query regarding Babe Ruth, king of batters.

Last year Ruth, with little saved off the fortune he had earned in baseball, was playing for a new contract. Upon the popularity he enjoyed and the home runs he made, rested the valuation he could rightly place on his services this year.

The year before that he was a total flop. His decline and his total lack of desire to do his stuff was credited to the knowledge that come what might, he would draw his $52,000 a year for another season.

Now Ruth has stowed away in the family strong box a newer and better contract—one that calls for not $52,000 a year but $70,000. And what is more important, that contract is to hold for three years.

Upon Ruth's ability to realize his responsibilities under the contract rests his future.

There is the proper question as to whether or not Miller Huggins' infield was playing over its head last season—whether or not the Yankee pilot will be forced to shift his inner defense this year.

Grover Alexander, pride of the baseball world and idol of the Cardinal fans especially, has been going great guns this spring. Spurred on by his great work last year the "Keep-Your-Shirt-On," easy-going Alec wants to carry his share of the load, and more, this season in keeping the pennants in St. Louis.

But I'm wondering if he isn't going to it a bit too strong.

And now, just so that you won't get the idea this is a pessimistic splurge I'm going to raise the query as to whether or not the bosses of the Cleveland Indians aren't overlooking a bet in going into the campaign without a definite place in the lineup for Lew Fonseca, the man they thought worth $40,000 last winter. How come? I think he ought to be in. I think he will be, too, eventually.

I look for Eddie Moore, canned by the Pirates, to make a bid for third basing honors with the Boston Braves this season.

Tiny Tavener of the Detroit Tigers, ought to show 'em something he has had up his sleeve for a couple of years, now that Detroit has a great second baseman to work with him.

Bill Doak is liable to win some 15 games for Brooklyn.

BASE RUNNERS TAKE NOTICE

Pitching plans of Jack McCallister, new manager of the Cleveland Indians, call for Uhle, Shaute, and Levsen to carry the bulk of the work, with Buckeye, Miller, and Hudlin supporting them. Which means that Sherrod Smith, above, veteran leftie, will do only pinch pitching. Which is good news for opposing base runners for Smith is known for his ability to nip runners on first base.

Reed Named As Floor Leader By Pitt Basketeers

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, April 8.—Sykes Reed, former Braddock high school star and a varsity player for two years, will captain the University of Pittsburgh quintet next year. Reed was chosen unanimously by the letter men last night.

PHILADELPHIA—The Athletics and Phillies rest today and resume their inter-city feud at Baker Bowl again tomorrow. The A's annexed the city title by their victory yesterday when they defeated the Phils 2 to 1 in the fourth game of a five game series.

Hornsby Will Attend Conflab In Pittsburgh

Hornsby Agrees To Go To Pittsburgh To Talk Over Stock Selling

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Rogers Hornsby has made his first move toward the settlement of the controversy over his holdings in the St. Louis Cardinals when he announced that he would leave the New York Giants of which he has been named captain and proceed to New York in company with John McGraw to talk the situation over. He said he expected to confer there with is attorney, William Fahey, if he proved unsuccessful in his effort to intercept the latter, en route from St. Louis and have him proceed directly to the special meeting of the National league in Pittsburgh today.

The meeting was called by President John A. Heydler to consider ways and means of settling the Hornsby matter before the major league opening. Heydler having decided that Hornsby cannot play for the Giants until he disposes of his stock in the Cardinals. At present Hornsby is asking $105 a share for his total of 1,167 shares while the best offer of Sam Breadon owner of the Cardinals is $60 a share.

Hornsby announced that he had recived a wire from Heydler asking the player to attend the Pittsburgh meeting with his stock certificates but this, Hornsby explained would be impossible. He said the certificates were in a St. Louis safe deposit box to which Mrs. Hornsby alone has the key. The player's wife is in New York he declared.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—The Yankees are homeward bound today, the series with the Cardinals ending in a draw when St. Louis won the last game 10 to 8. Babe Ruth got a homer, but Frisch hit two homers and two doubles to boot.

Mrs. Jess Willard

Home, Not Glamour Of Ring, Holds Her Attraction

Quiet, Unassuming

Modest and unassuming, refraining from discussing boxing but proud of her husband and their five children, three girls and two boys, a News reporter found Mrs. Jess Willard, wife of Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion of the world—the man who restored the championship to the Caucasian race, at the home of Miss Margaret Evans, R. F. D., No. 8, Seventh ward. She came here to attend the funeral of her uncle Joseph P. Evans, 67.

When the News reporter arrived at the Evans residence, Mrs. Willard had gone for a stroll along the Mount Jackson road, having only recently arrived and she believed the exercise was needed. When informed a reporter wished to interview her she returned to the house.

Instead of launching, as some wives of notables do, into boxing, and the accomplishments of her husband while he was in the boxing game, Mrs. Willard displayed photographs of her children, two boys and three girls, the boys being named Alan and Jess.

Mrs. Willard also displayed photographs of her husband, taken with their children and of their home and grounds in Glendale and incidentally said that since the Willards moved from Lawrence, Kans., which was put on the map by her husband, her wish had been realized.

"I always told Jess that I would like to own a home where there was a running brook. See', said Mrs. Willard pointing to the panoramic view of their vast estate, "this is the brook"—and she smiled.

It was this quiet, unassuming manner, that won her legions of friends during the days when her husband set out to conquer the pugilistic world. It was her modest unassuming manner re-inforced by confidence, that helped her husband obtain his goal.

Not one word about boxing; not one word about Dempsey, nor Tunney. In fact, Mrs. Willard, according to a friend said: "You know sometimes I am sorry we called one of our boys Jess. Everybody knows of his father and some other boys might say: "Oh, you're Jess Willard, eh; do you want to fight?" Judging from young Jess' photograph he will be able to give a good account of himself if such should happen.

In other words the glamour of the boxing game holds no atraction for Mrs. Willard, though her husband did make good and he made good use of the ring to aid his family and during his day in the game he was famed in the parlance of the ring as not doing anything that would bring he or his associates into disrepute.. He accomplished much toward its present status.

Jess is in the realty business with Ray Archer as a partner.

Their interests prevented the former champion from attending the funeral of the late uncle, J. P. Evans who himself was a boxing enthusiast and who on the day of the Willard-Johnson bout at Havana stood in front of a local newspaper and strongly asserted "Willard will win." No difference how the returns came, the late Evans maintained his stand, not only being proud of the big Kansan but declaring over and over: "Willard will win." And Willard did win after which he returned to his farm in North Beaver township, satisfied in having his prediction come true and a nephew as a champion.

With the News reporter who visited the Evans residence was Tom McMahon as it had been reported that Willard also had arrived. McMahon and Willard knew each other in the days before Jess was champion and even though they fought the bout produced friendship.

Training Camps

(International News Service)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 8.—Having won two straight from the Memphis club of the Southern Association, Ray Schalk's White Sox were in Louisville today, prepared to take another Dixie team into camp, the Colonels of the American Association.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Weather permitting, the second game of the series between the Cubs and the Kansas City Blues will be played here today. Yesterday's exhibition was washed away by Spring showers.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala.—The Cleveland Indians are booked to play the University of Alabama baseball team here today in an exhibition game. The Sewell brothers, Luke and Joe, now with the Indians, formerly played ball for the University here and a large crowd is expected to watch them "do their stuff."

WASHINGTON—If this year's world series is between the Giants and the Senators, there will be some heavy bets on the Giants. They licked the Nationals again yesterday, 19 to 9, and the Nats looked worse than usual. The Giants have now won 7 out of the nine games of the Spring exhibition series with the Senators.

ATLANTA, Ga. — Brooklyn's pitchers apparently are not ready for the opening gong. The Dodgers trimmed Atlanta yesterday but had to score eleven runs to do it. Clarence Griffin, southpaw rookies, has been released to Memphis.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The Pirates play the Southern Association Travelers here this afternoon, having completed their invasion of Texas with a 3 to 1 defeat at the hands of the Dallas Steers. From here the Pirates jump to Memphis, where they wind up their Spring training tour with games on Saturday and Sunday.

WICHITA FALLS, Tex.—Though the Tigers have won 15 out of 20 games they have played in Texas, Manager Moriarty is not satisfied with their class of play. In beating the Wichita Falls Spudders yesterday by the score of 7 to 2 the Tigers used three right handers, Doyle, Holloway and Collins.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.—Connie Mack's Junior Athletics travel to Durham today for a scheduled game this afternoon. The A's lost to the Winston-Salem Twins here yesterday in ten innings by the score of 5 to 4. Kit May did the hurling for the Athletics.

U. S. SHIPPING BOARD HAS PROGRAM TO "DIESELIZE" MERCHANT MARINE

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 8.—With six vessels already converted the United States Shipping Board is about to launch on a Dieselization program that eventually will provide 20 to 25 more motorships in the American merchant marine. The $25,000,000 available for the purpose is believed ample to accomplish this, according to Shipping Board officials.

The purpose of the motorship program are two-fold:

1—To give to the American Merchant Marine a nucleus around which a modern fleet can be constructed.

2—To bring some of the American lines to a position in which they can compete effectively with the ships of other flags.

3—To stimulate the design and manufacture of Diesel engines by Americans.

4—To develop skilled workmen and Diesel engineers among citizens of the United States.

American Made Engines

To stimulate American design and manufacture, the Board has purposely employed three types of American-made engines in the six vessels already completed. These are the Workington, the Busch-Sulzer and the McIntosh & Seymour types. Thus three plans already are prepared to fulfill future needs.

The vessels converted are the first of fourteen selected for Dieselization. When these are completed they will represent an expenditure of approximately $10,000,000, leaving $15,000,000 available for additional vessels

The six vessels reconstructed are all steel-cargo carriers converted from steam propulsion to internal combustion engine power. Eventually all six will be placed in the Far Eastern services because of their ability to make long voyages without the necessity for repairs and refueling.

Australian Service.

One of the six, the "West Cusseta," was put directly in the Atlantic Australian service. She completed her first voyage from New York to Sidney in 36 days without mishap and without any cost for repairs. The maiden voyage of the "Sawokia" will be to Buenos Aires and return.

The "Tampa," first to be launched was sent on its maiden voyage to Bremen with a cargo of American cotton, returning to New York with a miscellaneous cargo. A careful check for this trip on revenues and operating costs disclosed a marked saving in favor of the motorship as compared with average voyages of steamers of like size and design.

The speed of the Dieselized fleet ranges from 11 1-2 to 12 knots an hour. As steamers they were capable of making only 10 to 10 1-2 knots. On a run of 11,000 miles, such as from New York to Sidney this represents a difference of 5 to 7 days at sea. The saving on repair costs is estimated at close to $3,000 a voyage.

MARTIAL LAW IS DECLARED IN CHINESE CITY

(International News Service)

HONG KONG, April 8.—Martial law has been declared in Wuhu in an attempt to control Chinese troops, who are threatening to get out of control as their allegiance to their leaders is split. Part of the troops support General Chiang Kai Shek while the remainder are supporting the Communist leaders, according to reports received here.

The Chinese military are reported to have seized all foreign houses in Chinkiang.

Warships are picking up a number of Spanish priests between Hankow and Wuhu. These priests have been forced to evacuate their Yangtze posts hurriedly because of threats of violence.

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, April 8.—Funeral arrangements were made today for Ray P. Miller, former Pittsburgh Pirate and widely known among western Pennsylvania sandlot players. He died after a lingering illness.

French Unemployed Less Than In 1921

(International News Service)

PARIS, April 8.—Recent statistics published by the French Official Gazette show the total number of unemployed in France 80,941 including 21,529 women. This makes 1,200 more than the week just before the publication of the figures, but still shows an improvement over the year 1921 with a total number of Frenchmen out of work registered at 91,225.

The city of Paris and the neighboring Department of the Seine include the greater part of the unemployed. The metallurgical industry is the hardest hit, numbering 12,878 discharged workers and is followed by the building and timber industries, then the clothing and workers in leather and skins. After the Department of the Seine comes the Department of the (Lyons), where a great number of silk workers have been laid off.

Meanwhile, the prices of most foodstuffs and household necessaries refuse to come down and adapt themselves to the exchange rate of the franc. The difference in the trend of wholesale and retail prices is very noticeable. Between July, when the franc was at its lowest, and the end of January the index figures for wholesale prices dropped from 854 to 635, whereas the figure for retail trade rose from 574 in July to 628 in November and has since dropped to 529 only.

FARM FACTS

TIMELY REMINDERS
From The Pennsylvania State College

Break up Broody Hen — The broody hen loses a great deal of time from her laying duties. Usually it amounts to three or four weeks, and if not broken up immediately she wastes a lot more. The average number of days lost by a broody hen runs from 30 days for Leghorns to 58 days for Rhode Island Reds, according to poultry specialists of the Pennsylvania State College. This loss may be overcome by removing the hen the first night she goes on the nest, putting her in a coop either alone or with other broody hens, and feeding her a laying mash, clean water and green feed.

Remove Holes in Lawn—Depressions may be removed from lawns in two ways. In the first carefully take up the sod for several feet beyond the limits of the depression, place good top soil in the depression, tamp it well and replace the sod. In the other method place not more than three to 3 1-2 inches of top soil over the existing grass and sow grass seed. The old grass plants will grow through the soil.

Sow Some Alfalfa—Alfalfa seed is lower in price than clover, so it is advisable to mix some with the clover this spring. Sow two-thirds of the regular rate of red clover with eight to 15 pounds of alfalfa per acre. Northwestern-grown seed is good for most parts of the state and Canadian Variegated is adaptable to the northern sections. Be sure to inoculate.

Observe Forest Week—April 24 to 30 will be observed as American Forest Week. Judicious plantings of trees should be made by all and protective measures should again be emphasized. Every tree is a precious possession. Let's treat it as such.

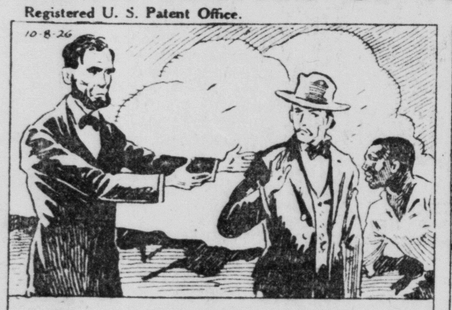
HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

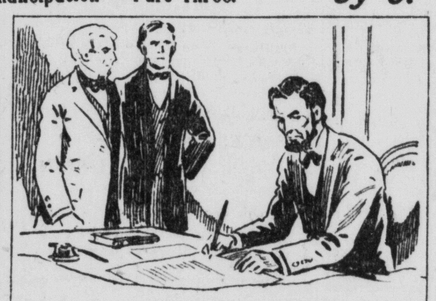
The Progress of Emancipation—Part Three.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

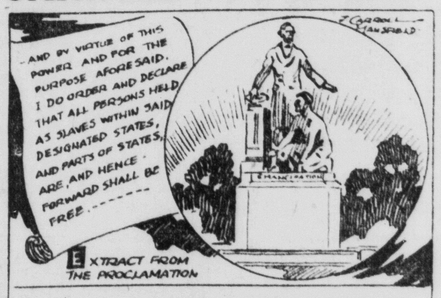


IN 1862 LINCOLN RECOMMENDED A BILL OFFERING GOVERNMENT FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO ANY STATE THAT WOULD FREE ITS SLAVES WITH COMPENSATION TO THE OWNERS. CONGRESS PASSED THIS MEASURE AND THE SAME YEAR ABOLISHED SLAVERY IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA WITH COMPENSATION AND IN THE TERRITORIES WITHOUT COMPENSATION.

LINCOLN'S PLAN ACCOMPLISHED BUT LITTLE, HOWEVER, AND HE RESOLVED TO LIBERATE BY PROCLAMATION ALL THE SLAVES IN THE SECEDED STATES AS A WAR MEASURE JUSTIFIABLE UNDER THE CONSTITUTION. THE CABINET APPROVED THIS STEP, BUT IT WAS DECIDED TO DELAY ACTION UNTIL SOME GREAT FEDERAL VICTORY WAS WON IN THE FIELD.



ON SEPT. 17, 1862, THE NORTH HAILED THE OUTCOME OF THE BATTLE OF ANTIETAM WITH REJOICING AND LINCOLN SAW HIS OPPORTUNITY. SEPT. 22 HE ISSUED A WARNING THAT AFTER JAN. 1, 1863, HE WOULD DECLARE FREE ALL SLAVES IN ANY STATE STILL IN ARMS AGAINST THE UNITED STATES.



THE CONFEDERATES IGNORED THIS THREAT AND ON THE APPOINTED DAY THE PRESIDENT ISSUED HIS FAMOUS PROCLAMATION OF EMANCIPATION. IT DID NOT ACTUALLY FREE ALL SLAVES, AS THE CONFEDERACY HAD YET TO BE CONQUERED, BUT IT FORECAST THE END OF SLAVERY IN AMERICA.

Public Sale Of Real Estate.

By authority of an order of the Orphans' Court of Lawrence County, I will offer for public sale on the premises, on Saturday, April 30, 1927, at 3 P. M., two contiguous pieces of land situated in Wilmington Township, near Volant, in Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, separately bounded and described as follows:

First Piece—Beginning at the northwest corner, thence eastward along the south line of lands of Valentine Hochstetler and lands of Hiram J. Collins to the Neshannock creek or lands of Carr; thence in a southwesterly direction along said creek or lands of Carr to a point opposite the middle of the underground crossing where the old state road crosses under the railroad; thence through the middle of said underground crossing and along a stream which extends along the second piece hereinafter described westward and northwestward by a somewhat irregular course to lands of Bert Hyberger; thence northward along the lands of Bert Hyberger, to the place of beginning containing about 100 acres, having erected thereon the house and barn with other farm buildings.

Second Piece—On the east by a small stream separating same from the first piece above described; on the west by lands of Bert Hyberger, Charles W. Martin, and formerly of Agnes Axe; on the southeast by lands of Carr or the Neshannock creek, containing 35 acres, more or less. The north-east corner of this land is opposite the middle of the underground crossing where the old state road crosses under the railroad, and the stream mentioned above as the eastern boundry passes through said underground crossing and the line extends westward and northwestward along said stream by a somewhat irregular course to the lands of Bert Hyberger. Same is under lease for sand, etc., and the purchaser will also get the royalties.

Said pieces of land will be sold separately or combined as I may deem best, but the first piece will be offered first.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, April 8.—Stock prices were deflected moderately downward in the early trading today as the result of the usual accumulation of week-end profit taking in stocks which have been leading the upward procession in the last week or so.

The "Southwest Merger" railroad stocks, including Kansas City Southern, Missouri Pacific and Katy displayed conspicuous strength, while the Nickel Plate shares were also firm, with Chesapeake and Ohio leading a rally, in which Erie participated. New York Central sold around 150, and other dividend rails made fractional gains.

The low-priced motor shares were unsettled by the new reduction announced in Moon cars, and the reports out of Detroit to the effect that Ford would bring out a new four-cylinder car about July first. Crude oil production in the Seminole was reported at a new peak of 339,000 barrels daily, with every indication of further gains. Outside of the Standard Oils and South American Oils, the petroleum shares displayed a reactionary tone, with Marland bearing the brunt of the selling.

Panic-Stricken Families Flee, Duplex Wrecked

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, April 8.—Panic-stricken when a still in their duplex house set the building on fire during the night, two families with between six and eight children fled, leaving all of their belongings, at Bellevue, a suburb, police here said today.

Investigation revealed that the families evidently did not even pause to gather their personal effects, a partly full nursing bottle being found on a bed. Fruit valued at hundreds of dollars was found in a shed of the home, together with parts of a still.

Damage was estimated at $5,000, and police are seeking the erstwhile residents.

White Slave Traffic In Hungarian Cities Brings Many Arrests

(International News Service)

MISKOLCZ, Hungary, April 8.—Several score of men, some of them government officials, have been arrested here on charges of operating a white slave traffic center. The chief of the government employment bureau, Dr. Ferencz Szikszay, who was a prominent leader of the social life of the city, was imprisoned as the chief of the gang.

The arrests have made a considerable stir and resulted in further disclosures that hundreds of girls are sent out of Hungary every year by white slavers who appear to be well organized. Dr. Szikszay opened an employment office here under government protection and in this way got ahold of the girls, mostly from the country, whom he desired. The investigations are being continued and the government at Budapest has promised to clean up all traces of the traffic in the country at once.

Junior Hadassah To Present Play

Will Be Given In Connection With Linen Shower At Beth Shalom Centre

Great interest is being displayed in the two-act play entitled "Redeeming of Palestine" which is being produced for the benefit of the Hadassah Linen Shower next Monday night at the Beth Shalom Centre.

Ralph Markley as Father Zionist, Miss Yettabelle Rosenblum as Mother Hadassah, and Miss Freda Shifman as Junior Hadassah, take the leading roles. Fear, Worry and Agitator, seek to discourage the former from continuing their work in the Holy Land. However, Work, Hope and Confidence come to their rescue and instill optimism in their hearts, causing the troublemakers to slink away.

Mr. Louis Sandler as Money, together with Interest bring additional encouragement through the wiles of Miss Goldie Levine, acting as Enthusiasm. Mrs. E. Kaplan, taking the part of Pleasure, accompanied by Song and Dance, impersonated by the Perelman twins, promise to raise additional funds to carry on the much needed work.

Finally four Visions appear before Mother Hadassah, now fatigued and dreaming. They are the Ideal of Palestine, Estelle Cuckerbaum, together with Prosperity, Peace and Joy. At the magic touch of these four little dancing fairies, she awakens with renewed zest and zeal to carry on the arduous burden.

Before the acts and during the intermission, several solos will be rendered all in keeping with the purpose and the occasion. Mark Rabinovitz, the speaker, will follow up the thought of the play.

Mme. Hana Shimozumi Iki, the Japanese grand opera star now in America, was the first Japanese woman to appear in any operatic role other than strictly Japanese in character.

Pays His Fine With Bogus Check

York Man Faces New Charge As Result Of Transaction

(International News Service)

YORK, Pa., April 8.—If paying one's fine with a bogus check after one has been arrested for drunkeness and disorderly conduct is the height of audacity, Harry McCormick, of York, has attained that height.

Picked up on the streets by two detectives who found him in an intoxicated condition, McCormick was taken before Mayor E. S. Hugentugler in police court on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 or spend thirty days in jail.

Unwilling to spend the thirty days in jail, McCormick tendered the mayor a check for $25 in payment of his fine. The man was released and the city cashed the check but soon it came back from the bank marked "insufficient funds."

Acting upon orders from the mayor, Chief of Police A. H. Stevens swore out a warrant before a local alderman charging McCormick with passing a fraudulent check. McCormick was re-arrested and placed under bond for a hearing.
